Medical Transfer and Partnership.

32, LUDGATE HILL.

MESSRS. ORRIDGE & Co., Medical Agents and Valuers, in offering their services to the Profession, have pleasure in referring to the fact, that for upwards of thirty years the name of Mr. ORRIDGE has been known in the advertising columns of the leading medical journals as that of one to whom a very large proportion of the medical men throughout the kingdom have confided their interests in the adjustment of PARTNERSHIP and TRANSFERS.

Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. have the honour of being permitted to give reference to the testimony of those for whom they have been thus concerned during this lengthened period—a privilege that they trust will be regarded as a conclusive proof of the sincerity of their endeavours to conduct these transactions in an honourable and straightforward manner.

Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. take leave to point out that the instrumentality of their extensive connection enables them to offer peculiar advantages in the furtherance of their respective objects to those who are about to RECEIVE PARTNERS or to RELINQUISH or to COMMENCE practice.

Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. are fully aware of the evil of an undue publicity in negotiations relating to Medical Practices, and every care is taken that particulars entrusted to them are submitted only to suitable applicants, the private nature of the information given being strictly enjoined.

Purchasers who will communicate (confidentially) the nature and extent of their wishes regarding investment can be apprised of appropriate opportunities as they occur.

On occasions where ADVICE is required in forming a correct conclusion as to the worth or eligibility of a Practice, Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. trust that their familiarity with the various contingencies that govern value will be found of considerable service to those by whom they are employed.

N.B.—No charge to Purchasers.

SKIN DISEASES: including their Definitions, Symptoms, Diagnosis, Prognosis, Morbid Anatomy, and Treatment. A Manual for Students and Practitioners,

By MALCOLM MORRIS, F.R.C.S. Ed.,

Surgeon to the Department for Diseases of the Skin, St. Mary's Hospital, and Lecturer on Dermatology in the Medical School.

"It is an extremely skilful and intelligent condensation of the essentials of dermatology; and it shows throughout the marks of careful observation, as well as well-grounded scientific study. The short chapters on Morbid Anatomy and on Classification are both of them excellent; and it is evident that Mr. Morris has studied in a good school for scientific investigation, while he has not at all learnt to despise the very practical question of treatment. The arrangement is systematic, the style clear, and the matter accurate. The Manual possesses, therefore, all the essentials of sound instruction, and is likely to lead to satisfactory practice on the part of those who rely on it for their guidance."—Brit. Med. Jour.

"The book is clearly and concisely written, and the subject handled in a way calculated to be readily intelligible to students."—The Lancet.

"A plain practical book, by aid of which, who so chooses, may train his eye to the recognition of slight but significant differences. The descriptions are neither too vague nor over-refined; the directions for treatment are clear and succinct."—Brain.

"The work essentially addresses itself to practical surgeons, and constitutes for them, by its numerous cases and ample and truthful illustrations, a most valuable book of reference and a guide in forming an estimate of the nature, progress, and prognosis of cancer under all its best-known aspects."—Med.-Chir. Review.

The above-mentioned colleges and other bodies may transmit from time to time, to the registrar of the Branch Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland, lists, certified under their respective seals, of the several persons who, in respect of qualifications granted by such colleges and bodies respectively, are, for the time being, entitled to be registered, stating the respective qualifications, and places of residence of such persons; and thereupon, and upon payment of the proper fee, such registrar will enter in the register the persons mentioned in such lists, with their qualifications and places of residence, without other application in relation thereto. The powers of these bodies to grant qualifications for registration extends to the granting of any qualification for registration granted by such body to all persons, without distinction of sex. Persons who were actually practising medicine in England before August 1st, 1815, are entitled to be registered upon payment of a fee of 2*l.*, and upon producing to the registrar of the Branch Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland, or upon transmitting to him by post, together with information of name and address, the following declaration duly signed:—To the Registrar of the Medical Council.—I, , residing at , in the county of , hereby declare that I was practising as a medical practitioner, at , in the county of , before the first day of August, 1815. (Signed.) [Name.] Dated this day of , 18 . Persons who, on or before October 1st, 1858, held appointments as surgeons or assistant-surgeons in the Army, Navy, or Militia, or in the service of the East India Company, or who were acting, on or before that date, as surgeons in the public service, or in the service of any charitable institution, are entitled to be registered on the production of evidence, satisfactory to the Branch Council to which application may be made, that there is sufficient ground for directing such registration to be made. Persons who were practising medicine or surgery within the United Kingdom, on foreign or colonial diplomas or degrees, before 2nd August, 1858, are entitled to be registered, if they obtained such diplomas or degrees after regular examination at the seat of the university or college which granted the same. Any registered person who obtains any higher degree, or any of the qualifications mentioned above, other than the qualification in respect of which he was registered, is entitled to have such higher degree or additional qualification inserted in the register, in substitution of, or in addition to the qualification previously registered, on payment of a fee of 5*s.* Any person claiming to be entitled to be registered on account of any qualification, or to be entitled to have any additional qualification added to his name, after the first registration, is bound to satisfy the registrar, by proper evidence, that he is entitled to such qualification. Any appeal from the decision of the registrar may be decided by the General Council, or by the Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland (as the case may be); and any entry which may be proved, to the satisfaction of such General Council, or Branch Council, to have been fraudulently or incorrectly made, may be erased from the register, by order in writing of such General Council, or Branch Council. When the registrar of a Branch Council inserts in, and afterwards, by order of such Branch Council, and without notice to the party registered, strikes out of the register the description of a qualification which the evidence produced to the registrar by the claimant did not show that he had obtained, the Court will not, by Mandamus, compel the registrar to re-insert such description. Any person wilfully procuring, or attempting to procure himself to be registered, by making or producing, or causing to be made or produced, any false or fraudulent representation or declaration, either verbally or in writing, and any person aiding and assisting him therein, is liable, on conviction, to be sentenced to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding twelve months.

Registration of Colonial Practitioners.—Every colonial legislature has full power, from time to time, to make laws for the purpose of enforcing the registration, within its jurisdiction, of medical practitioners, including persons who have been registered under the "Medical Act;" but any person who has been duly registered under that Act is entitled to be registered in any colony, upon payment of the fees (if any) required for such registration, and upon proof, in such manner as the colonial legislature may direct, of his registration under the said Act. This does not apply to the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man.

Powers of the General Council over the Licensing and Qualifying Bodies.—The several colleges and bodies authorized to grant the qualifications which entitle the holders thereof to be registered, are bound, from time to time, when required by the General Council, to furnish such Council with such information as they may require, as to the courses of study and examinations to be gone through to obtain the respective qualifications, and the ages at which such courses of study and examination are required to be gone through, and such qualifications are conferred, and, generally, as to the requisites for obtaining such qualifications. Any member or members of the General Council, or any person or persons deputed for the purpose by such Council, or by any Branch Council, may attend and be present at any such examinations. Whenever it may appear to the General Council that the course of study and examinations to be gone through, in order to obtain any such qualification from any such college or body, are not such as to secure the possession by persons obtaining such qualification of the requisite knowledge and skill for the efficient practice of their profession, the General Council may represent the same to the Privy Council. The Privy Council may, upon any such representation, if it see fit, order that any qualification granted by such college or body, after such time as may be mentioned in the order, shall not confer any right to be registered. Her Majesty may, however, with the advice of her Privy Council, when it is made to appear to her, upon further representation from the General Council, or otherwise, that such college or body has made effectual provision, to the satisfaction of the General Council for the improvement of such course of study or examinations, or the mode of conducting such examinations, revoke any such order. After the time mentioned in any such Order in Council, no person is entitled to be registered in respect of any such qualification, as in such order mentioned, granted by the college or body to which such order relates, after the time therein mentioned; and the revocation of any such order does not entitle any person to be registered in respect of any qualification granted before such revocation. Whenever it may appear to the General Council that an attempt has been made by any body entitled to grant qualifications to impose upon any candidate offering himself for examination an obligation to adopt, or refrain from adopting, the practice of any particular theory of medicine or surgery, as a test or condition of admitting him to examination, or of granting a certificate, the General Council may represent the same to the Privy Council. The Privy Council may, upon any such representation, issue an injunction to such body so acting, directing them to desist from such practice, and, in the event of their not complying therewith, order that such body shall cease to have the power of conferring any right to be registered, so long as they shall continue such practice. All the above-mentioned powers of the Privy Council may be exercised by any three or more of the Lords and others of the Privy Council, the Vice-President of the Committee of the Privy Council on Education being one of them; and all the above-mentioned orders and acts of the Privy Council are deemed sufficiently made and signified by a written or printed document, signed by one of the clerks of the Privy Council, or such officer as may be appointed by the Privy Council in such behalf; and all orders and acts made or signified by any written or printed document purporting to be so signed, are deemed to have been duly made, issued, and done by the Privy Council; and every such document is evidence in all courts, and before all justices and others, without proof of the authority or signature of such clerk, or other officer, or other proof whatsoever, until it is shown that such document was not duly signed by the authority of the Privy Council.

DENTISTS.

No person may take the title of dentist, or any title implying that he is qualified to practise dentistry, unless registered, under a penalty of 20*l.*, nor can an unregistered person recover his charges for any dental operation, attendance, or advice. These provisions do not apply to legally qualified medical men. The control of the register, and the supervision of the profession, are vested in the medical council. No private person may institute a prosecution against an unregistered person without the leave of the medical council or a branch council. Those entitled to registration are licentiates in dental surgery or dentistry of any medical authority, foreign and colonial dentists, with recognised certificates, and such persons as on 22nd July, 1878, were bonâ fide practising dentists.

UNREGISTERED AND UNQUALIFIED PRACTITIONERS.

Registration is not compulsory upon medical men, nor can any penalties be inflicted upon an unregistered person, who, having obtained a qualification in medicine or surgery, practises according to such qualification. No unregistered person, however, can recover any charge, in any court of law, for any medical or surgical advice or attendance, or for the performance of any operation, or for any medicine which he has both prescribed and supplied, whether he be qualified or unqualified. Neither may any unregistered person hold any appointment either as a physician, surgeon, or other medical officer, either in the military or naval service, or in emigrant or other vessels, or in any hospital, infirmary, dispensary, or lying-in hospital not supported wholly by voluntary contributions, or in any lunatic asylum, gaol, house of correction, house of industry, parochial union, workhouse, or poor-house, parish, union, or other public establishment, body, or institution, or to any friendly or other society for affording mutual relief in sickness, infirmity, or old age, or as a medical officer of health. Neither is any certificate required by any Act of Parliament from any medical practitioner valid, if signed by an unregistered person. There is nothing, therefore, to prevent a qualified but unregistered person from keeping an open surgery and doing a ready-money business. A person who practises medicine or surgery, without having obtained the necessary diploma or licence, is, of course, debarred from recovering any fees or charges. He may, moreover, be proceeded against for penalties by any of the medical or surgical corporate bodies whose jurisdiction he may infringe. These rights have, however, rarely been exercised of late years except by the Society of Apothecaries, which still frequently sues for penalties against persons practising without its licence. The practice of an apothecary may now be said to consist in attending and advising patients afflicted with diseases requiring medical (as distinguished from surgical) treatment, and prescribing, compounding, and supplying medicines for their cure or relief. The class of cases which it is the province of the apothecary to treat, includes most of the diseases by which the human frame is affected; for instance, diseases of the brain, the lungs, the heart, the stomach, the liver, and the bowels, when the disorder is unattended by any external wound, sore, or tumour, and when medical treatment, unaided by any manual operation, is called for. A penalty of 20*l.* may be inflicted, for every such offence, upon any person acting or practising as an apothecary in England or Wales, without the licence of the Society, and a penalty of 5*l.*, for every such offence upon any person acting as assistant to an apothecary to compound and dispense medicines, without having obtained the certificate of the Society. The Society can, therefore, afford no protection against practice by bone-setters, and that class of persons, but it can supply an efficient safeguard against irregular practice by chemists and druggists, for it has been held that a chemist who not only sells but also applies and administers medicines, in the ordinary course of attending patients, practises as an apothecary, and is not exempt from the penalty. Any person who wilfully and falsely pretends to be, or takes or uses the name or title of a physician, doctor of medicine, licentiate in medicine and surgery, bachelor of medicine, surgeon, general practitioner, or apothecary, or any name, title, addition, or description implying that he is a registered person, or that he is recognised by law as a physician, a surgeon, a licentiate in medicine and surgery, or a practitioner in medicine, or an apothecary, may, upon a summary conviction for such offence, be fined a sum not exceeding 20*l.* Convictions, in suits to recover this penalty, are not, however, easily obtained, as there must be unequivocal evidence that the party wilfully and falsely pretended. It is not enough, for instance, to prove that he is called a surgeon by persons whom he has attended professionally, in the absence of evidence to show that he has done so on his own account and for his own profit. Where an otherwise unqualified person describes himself by such a title as "M.D. of the Metropolitan College of New York," it is a question of fact for the Magistrate whether there has been any wilful and false pretence.

UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT.

It is provided by the Medical Act, that "if any registered medical practitioner shall be convicted in England or Ireland of any felony or misdemeanor, or in Scotland of any crime or offence, or shall, after due inquiry, be judged by the General Council to have been guilty of infamous conduct in any professional respect, the General Council may, if they see fit, direct the registrar to erase the name of such medical practitioner from the register." This applies to conduct of which the practitioner was guilty before as well as after registration. The General Council are the sole judges of whether a practitioner has been guilty of conduct infamous in a professional respect. They are bound to allow the accused person an opportunity of being heard in his defence, and it is their custom to allow him to appear by attorney, but not by counsel. The Medical Act further provides, that if any of the recognised colleges or medical or surgical bodies at any time exercise any power they possess by law of striking off from the list of such college or body the name of any one of their members, such college or body shall signify to the General Council the name of the member so struck off; and that the General Council may, if they see fit, direct the registrar to erase forthwith from the register the qualification derived from such college or body, in respect of which such member was registered, and that the registrar shall note the same therein. The name of no person may, however, be removed from the register on the ground of his having adopted any theory of medicine or surgery. Any application for the removal of a name from the register is investigated, in the first instance, by the Branch Council of that part of the kingdom in which the person whose name is proposed to be removed resides, and a statement of the case, and of the evidence in support of it, is then sent up by such Branch Council to the registrar of the General Council. The registrar, if so directed, then summons the person against whom the proceedings have been instituted to attend the General Council. When the Council remove the name of any person from the register, they send due intimation thereof to the various recognised colleges and medical and surgical bodies, accompanied by a recommendation that such person shall not be admitted to examination for any new qualification without the consent of the General Council.

LIABILITY FOR NEGLIGENCE AND MALAPRAXIS.

Every medical practitioner who, by a culpable want of attention and care, or by the absence of a competent degree of skill and knowledge, causes injury to a patient, is liable to a civil action for damages, even where the patient neither employed nor was to pay him, unless such injury be the immediate result of intervening negligence on the part of the patient himself, or unless such patient has, by his own carelessness, directly conduced to such injury. A surgeon does not undertake that he will perform a cure, nor does he undertake to use the highest possible degree of skill; but he undertakes to bring a fair, reasonable, and competent degree of skill; and in such an action the question is, whether the injury must be referred to the want of a proper degree of skill and care in the defendant or not. A medical man who is guilty of gross negligence, or evinces a gross want of knowledge of his profession, is criminally responsible for the consequences, but he is not liable to a criminal investigation for every slip. It must be a substantial thing. The distinction between actionable and criminal negligence cannot be defined, except so far as to say that to constitute the latter there must be such a degree of complete negligence as the law means by the word "felonious." The American courts have laid down that only "ordinary" skill and diligence are required of physicians and surgeons, and that their responsibility is not to be measured by the same rules that apply to mechanics and artizans.

INOCULATION WITH THE SMALL-POX.

Inoculating with the small-pox is now a criminal offence, and any person producing or attempting to produce, in any person, by inoculation with variolous matter, or by wilful exposure to variolous matter, or to any matter, article, or thing impregnated with variolous matter, or wilfully, by any other means whatsoever, producing the disease of small-pox in any person, may be proceeded against summarily, and is liable, upon conviction, to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding one month.

VIVISECTION.

By "The Cruelty to Animals Act, 1876" (39 & 40 Vict. c. 77), painful experiments on animals are prohibited, under heavy penalties, except subject to the restrictions imposed by the Act. The restrictions are that the experiment must, in every case, be for medical or physiological purposes; that the operator must be licensed under the Act; that the animal must be under an anæsthetic, and must be killed before it recovers therefrom if it be seriously injured, or the pain be likely to continue; and that the experiment must not be performed as an illustration of a public lecture, or for the purpose of attaining manual skill. Most of these restrictions may, however, be relaxed on a certificate being obtained, in manner provided by the Act, setting forth valid reasons for such relaxation. There are also special restrictions as to the performance of painful experiments on horses, asses, mules, dogs, and cats. No public exhibition of painful experiments may be given or advertised. Persons aiding in performing such experiments illegally are subject to penalties. Licences are granted by the Secretary of State, who has powers to compel the registry of places in which such experiments are to be performed, to cause such places to be visited by inspectors, and to direct any person making such experiments to report the results to him. Applications for licences must be signed by one or more of the presidents of certain medical, surgical, and scientific bodies specified in the Act, and countersigned by a University professor of physiology, medicine, anatomy, medical jurisprudence, materia medica, or surgery, not being the applicant himself. A judge has power to license such experiments when he deems them essential for the purposes of justice in a criminal case. No prosecution under the Act can be instituted against a licensed person without the assent in writing of the Secretary of State. The Act does not apply to invertebrate animals.

REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

It is now the duty of a medical man who has been present at the birth of a child, "in default of the father and mother," to give notice of the birth to the registrar within forty-two days, and to sign the register in his presence. If no notice has been given by any one within the forty-two days, the registrar may, by notice in writing, require such medical man (amongst other persons) to attend personally at his office and give him the necessary information, to the best of his knowledge and belief, as to the particulars required to be registered. The official instructions to registrars, however, enjoin upon them not to call upon persons present at the birth until they have failed to obtain the information from both the parents and the occupiers; so that, in practice, medical men are not likely to be often troubled in this respect. A medical man who has been present at a death in a house, must, "in default of the nearest relatives of the deceased present at the death or in attendance during the last illness, and in default of any other such relatives within the same sub-district," give to the registrar, within five days, information, to the best of his knowledge and belief, of the facts concerning the death required to be registered, and must sign the register in his presence. If notice of the death, and a medical certificate of the cause thereof, be sent to the registrar within five days, the other particulars may be given within fourteen days from the death. If no information be given by any one within fourteen days from the death, the registrar may, by notice in writing, require the medical man who was present at the death (amongst other persons) to attend personally at his office and give the necessary information.

The above regulations apply to medical men regarded merely in the light of "persons present at the birth or death."

With respect to certificates of the cause of death, every registered practitioner is entitled to demand to be supplied gratis with printed forms of such certificates by the registrar of the sub-district in which he resides or practises, and any practitioner who has been in attendance during the last illness of any person, must, after the decease of such person (except where an inquest is held on the body), sign and give to some person required to give information concerning the death, one of such certificates, stating, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the cause of death. Such certificate is entered in the register, together with the name of the certifying practitioner. A penalty of 40*s.* may be inflicted for refusing or failing to give such certificate. There is also a penalty not exceeding 40*s.* for failing to comply with a requisition of, or refusing to answer questions lawfully put by, a registrar. For wilfully giving a false answer to the registrar, or giving false information, or making a false certificate, a penalty not exceeding 10*l.* may be inflicted, or, on indictment, a term of imprisonment or of penal servitude may be awarded for any such offence. The indictment must be commenced within three years after the commission of the offence. A medical man attending during the last illness and until the death of any person in Scotland must, under a penalty of 40*s.*, within seven days after such death, transmit to the registrar a certificate of such death in a particular form, copies of which are supplied to him by the registrar. The registrar of births and deaths must make weekly returns of all registered deaths on forms provided by the Local Government Board, to the Medical Officer of Health for the district.

DUTY OF MEDICAL MEN AS WITNESSES.

Coroners' Inquests.—The following are the chief provisions of the Medical Witnesses' Acts, by which the Coroner is empowered to issue his order for the attendance of medical practitioners at inquests. Whenever upon the holding of any Coroner's Inquest it appears that the deceased person was attended at his death, or during his last illness, by any legally qualified medical practitioner, the Coroner may issue his order for the attendance of such practitioner as a witness; and if such person was not so attended, then the order may issue for the attendance of any legally qualified practitioner in actual practice in or near the place where the death happened. The majority of jurymen at such an inquest may also call for the evidence of such other medical witnesses as they may desire. The Coroner may also direct the performance of a post-mortem examination, with or without an analysis of the contents of the stomach or intestines. When the Coroner's order for the attendance of a medical practitioner at an Inquest has been personally served upon such practitioner, or where any such order has been received by such practitioner in sufficient time for him to have obeyed such order, or where any such order has been served at his residence; and, in every case, where he has not obeyed such order, he is liable to a penalty of 5*l.* for such neglect or disobedience, which may be enforced by distress. The Coroner is bound to issue his summons according to a prescribed form, and any other description of order would be invalid, and no penalty could be inflicted on a medical man disobeying an order not drawn up according to the statutory form. The following is the Form of Order:—"Coroner's Inquest at ——, upon the body of ——. By virtue of this my order, as Coroner for ——, you are required to appear before me and the jury at ——, on the —— day of ——, at —— of the clock, to give evidence touching the cause of death of —— [and make, or assist in making, a post-mortem examination of the body, with (without) an analysis], and report thereon at the said Inquest. (Signed) A. B., Coroner. To ——, Surgeon [or M.D.]." A medical man should remember that in giving evidence before a Coroner, he is, in all cases likely to end in a committal of the accused person, virtually delivering it before a judge of assize; and this fact alone, if not a respect for the Court, should induce him to give the evidence guardedly, and with a due consideration to the serious results to which it may ultimately lead. A hasty opinion may involve the accused in a charge of manslaughter, and though it may lead to no worse result, may be the means of causing the person charged to be imprisoned for some months previously to the trial. An opinion as to the cause of death should not be given without making an inspection of the body. No man is compellable to give an opinion upon insufficient data, and if by the institution of a judicial inquiry there are grounds for believing that a death has not been natural, no medical opinion of the cause should be given in the absence of an inspection. Such an opinion must always be conjectural, and may involve the medical man in an unpleasant responsibility.

Medical Reports.—A medical witness will do well to remember also, that copies of his report and depositions, either before a Coroner or Magistrate, are usually placed in the hands of counsel, as well as of the Court, and that his evidence, as it is given at the trial, is compared word for word with that which has already been put on record. In drawing up medical reports to Inquests, or for other legal purposes, care should be taken to avoid exaggerated language and the too free use of technical terms, and to keep facts distinct from comments. The former may be useful as evidence, the latter are inadmissible. As a rule, nothing should be entered in a report which is not connected with the subject of inquiry, and which has not actually fallen under the observation of the reporter. The introduction of hearsay statements should be carefully avoided. In a medical report of an analysis in a case of suspected poisoning, it is not necessary that all the details of the analysis should be entered. A general statement of the results, to the effect that certain tests and processes have been used, will be sufficient. A medical man who neglects this rule, simply furnishes materials for a cross-examination to "medical counsel" acting only in the interests of a prisoner.

Subpœnas—Expenses.—A medical man is not bound to attend as witness at a trial, except upon a subpœna. The subpœna should be served a reasonable time before trial, to enable him to put his affairs in such order that his attendance on the Court may be as little detrimental as possible to his interests. His reasonable expenses should be tendered to him at the time when he is served with the subpœna, in civil cases, or at least a reasonable time before the trial, and even though he actually appear, he cannot be attached for declining to give evidence, unless these charges be paid or tendered, but the objection that his expenses have not been paid must be raised before he has been sworn. In criminal cases, no tender of fees is necessary, except in the case of witnesses living in one distinct part of the United Kingdom being required to attend subpœnas directing their attendance in another, who are not liable to punishment for disobedience of the process, unless the time of service, a reasonable and sufficient sum of money to defray their expenses in coming, attending, and returning have been tendered to them. In cases of summary convictions, making or not making an order for costs is in the discretion of the magistrates, and the Secretary of State cannot interfere with them. In all cases in which separate subpœnas are served for trials for the same time, the civil should give way to the criminal case. If the subpœnas are for two civil or two criminal cases, the course of a witness should be to attend to that in which the subpœna was first served upon him.

Medical Jurisprudence.—No member of the medical profession should be without a knowledge of the science of medical jurisprudence. Few medical men who have been engaged in the practice of the profession have not found themselves occasionally placed in situations of difficulty from the accidental occurrence of cases demanding medico-legal investigation. A medical practitioner who thinks himself secure in the most retired corner of the kingdom, is liable to find himself suddenly summoned as a witness on a trial, to answer questions which perhaps during a long period of practice he has been led to regard as trifling and unimportant. Under the circumstances, if he be destitute of medico-legal knowledge, it is scarcely possible that he can avoid exposing his deficiencies, and thus a guilty man may escape punishment or an innocent man be condemned, whilst his own reputation may be seriously injured; for it is certain that his qualifications as a physician, surgeon, or practitioner, however great, will not shield him from general reprobation. The first duty of a medical jurist is to cultivate a faculty of minute observation of medical and other circumstances. This, when combined with a general knowledge of what the law requires as evidence, will enable him to meet in a satisfactory manner all the scientific questions that may be necessary for the elucidation of a case. A medical man, when he sees a dead body, should notice everything. The condition and position of the body of a person dead from wounds, the position of a weapon, and the state of the dress and weapon, as well as the form and direction of the wound itself, should be marked with accuracy. It should not be left to policemen to say whether there were any marks of blood on the dress or on the hands of the deceased, or on the furniture in the room. With reference to the body, observation should be made at the time of the case, whether any part of it is cold or warm, and whether the limbs are cold and rigid, or cold and pliant.

Note.—As a matter of practice, a medical man will find it extremely convenient, in any case with regard to which he may be likely to be called upon to give evidence in the future, to draw up a report or memorandum of facts and appearances while they are fresh in his recollection, for such facts and appearances are generally so minute and detailed that they cannot with safety be entrusted to the memory; and although the witness may not be allowed to read such a report as part of his evidence, yet he will always be at liberty to refer to it, even in the witness-box, for the purpose of refreshing and assisting his memory.

General Rule.—A medical witness should bear in mind that he should be well prepared on all parts of the subject on which he is about to give evidence. A man, whether learned or not, whether in Court or out of Court, will talk clearly upon a subject he well understands, whether scientific or otherwise; but unless it is clear in his own mind, his account of it will be confused and unsatisfactory. The case should be viewed in all possible aspects before entering the witness-box, and if an opinion has been formed, it should be dealt with and criticised as if it were that of an adversary. As in controversy, a disputant should put himself as much as possible into the position of his antagonist, and see the question from his point of view. The demeanour of a medical witness should be that of an educated man, and suited to the serious occasion on which he appears, even though he may feel himself provoked or irritated by the course of cross-examination adopted. In reference to facts, a medical witness must bear in mind that he should not allow his testimony to be influenced by the consequences which may follow from his statement or by their probable effect upon any case which is under trial. In reference to opinions, no possible influence on the fate of a prisoner should inspire caution in forming them, but when formed they should be honestly and candidly stated, without reference to consequences. The questions put on either side should receive direct answers, and the manner of the witness should be perceptibly different whether he is replying to a question put by the counsel for the prosecution or for the defence. Care should be taken not to argue with counsel. What a witness says under such circumstances is not evidence, except in answers to questions, and he is there only for the purpose of stating what is relevant to the case. The replies should be concise, distinct, and to the point, and except where explanation may be necessary, they should be confined strictly to the terms of the question. Answers to questions should be neither ambiguous, undecided, nor evasive. If by a proper consideration of all the medical facts the witness has come to a conclusion on the subject, his answer should be expressed in plain and decided language, either in the affirmative or negative. A man who has formed no conclusion is not in a position to give evidence. No opinion should be given for which the witness is not prepared to assign reasons. The replies should be made in simple language free from technicality. The employment of such technical phraseology before persons wholly ignorant of, or but imperfectly acquainted with, medical terms is not science but pedantry. A medical witness should, for his own credit, and for that of the profession to which he belongs, employ plain and simple language in giving his evidence generally. The medical witness may, without any imputation upon his bona fides, explain medical points to counsel, and correct him on medical subjects, when wrong in his views or statements, but he should avoid even the appearance of prompting counsel in the conduct of the case. A medical man has no privilege to avoid giving in evidence any statement made to him by a patient, but he is bound to disclose, when called upon to do so, every communication, however private and confidential, which has been made to him while attending in his professional character. A dying declaration is not admissible in evidence, unless the deceased was conscious of approaching death, or made it under a sense of impending death. Any hope of recovery, however slight, renders such a declaration inadmissible, and the question turns rather on the state of mind at the time of making the declaration than upon the interval between it and the death. The declaration is only admissible in a charge of homicide, and where the death of the deceased is the subject of the inquiry and the circumstances of the death the subject of the declaration. Where a medical man has attended a patient suffering from some injury or disorder suspects that such injury or disorder has been caused by some third person, and by holding out a promise or threat succeeds in obtaining from such person a confession of guilt, such confession will not be received in evidence against him in a criminal prosecution. A medical man may be called upon to assist a jury of matrons impanelled to try whether a prisoner is quick with child.

Experts.—Nothing more is required to entitle any one to give evidence as a skilled medical witness than that he has been educated in his profession, nor is it necessary that he should be engaged in the practice of his profession. The tribunal must determine the weight due to such evidence in each particular instance, and it is a question of fact to be decided by the Court at trial whether a witness offered as an expert has the necessary qualifications. It should be always remembered that medical men, when called as skilled witnesses, may only say what in their judgment would be the result of certain facts submitted to their consideration, and may not give an opinion as to the general merits of the case, or on things with which a jury may be supposed to be equally well acquainted. It will frequently be the duty of a medical expert, in civil as well as in criminal cases, and in all actions for malapraxis, to pass an opinion on the practice of another professional man. On such occasions, while there should be no suppression of the truth, a witness is bound, in answering questions put to him by counsel, to state his opinion, and the grounds upon which it is based, clearly and distinctly. A medical witness is not bound to be forward in pointing out and suggesting defects, or in endeavouring to lower another practitioner in the opinion of the public; but nothing should be concealed which is relevant to the elucidation of the case in issue.

GIFTS FROM PATIENTS.

No person who stands in a relation of special confidence to another, so as to acquire habitua influence over his mind, can accept any gift or benefit from the person who is under the dominio of that influence without danger of having the gift set aside in a Court of Equity; and where ther exists a relation which naturally creates influence over the mind, such as the relation betwee medical adviser and patient, the Court will infer, from the mere fact of the existence of suc relationship between the parties, the probability of such undue influence having been exerted. I such cases, therefore, the burthen of proving that the transaction is righteous, falls upon th person taking the benefit, and in order to prove this, he must show not only that the donor kne what he was doing, but also how the intention was produced. In questions of this kind, medic attendants are within that class of persons whose acts, when dealing with their patients, a watched with great jealousy. The Court does not blame or discountenance the influence itse flowing from such a relationship, but, on the contrary, considers the due exercise of it useful ar advantageous to society; it holds, however, as an inseparable condition, that such influence shou be exerted for the benefit of the patient, and not for the advantage of the medical attendant. T Court of Probate, however, holds that these rules are not applicable to the making of wills, a that the natural influence which arises out of the relationship of doctor and patient may lawful be exerted to obtain a will or legacy, so long as the testator thoroughly understands what he doing, and is a free agent.

CONTRACTS WITH PATIENTS.

There is nothing in the relation of medical attendant and patient which can prevent the from entering into a contract with the other, but while such a relation continues, a Court of Equ will look upon a contract entered into without the intervention of a third party with considera jealousy. A man who happens to be an eminent physician, and is therefore called upon to att a number of persons, is not consequently precluded from entering into a contract with any s person, such as the purchase of a house, for instance, from any of his numerous patients; fo such a case, the contract proceeds openly and fairly, and the relation of physician and patient in reality, no bearing upon it; but the case is far different when the relation is continued dow the time of the contract, and where the contract, in point of fact, arises out of such relation.

ACTION FOR DEFAMATION.

Any matter affecting a medical man in his profession, although not in itself actionable, bec so if it tend to disgrace or affect him injuriously in such profession, but unless the fact be admi in the defamatory matter, he must prove that he was in practice, and legally qualified to a such capacity at the time when the cause of action arose, or the words could not have affected in his profession. In every such publication the law will infer malice. Where special dama claimed, such damages must have actually occurred, must be the natural and direct consequen the wrongful act, and not too remote. If, however, the plaintiff fail in proving special damag for instance, the loss of particular patients, he may recover damages for a general loss of busi if the matter be actionable in itself, whether such loss has or has not actually arisen at the Partners may sue jointly, and recover damages for injury sustained in their joint business. action for libel (written defamation) must be brought within six years after the cause of a An action for slander (oral defamation) must be brought within two years after the words sp unless such words are actionable only by reason of special damage, in which case the action be brought at any time within six years.

PARTNERS, ASSISTANTS, &c.

Partners.—In no case can a partnership exist where there is the relationship of master an vant between the parties, whatever may be the manner in which the latter is remunerated. N does a partnership exist where there is no joint interest. An agreement to procure a partnersl a medical man, by the assignment of patients by a third person, to whom a premium is to b is not illegal. Where an individual partner acquires an office or other appointment of a pe nature, it does not become partnership property, except by special agreement, although i have been acquired by means of partnership property, and, during the partnership, the p holding it may be accountable to the partnership for the profits. In the absence of evid the contrary, the presumption is that the partners are entitled to an equal share of the and where the agreement is only to share the profits, under similar circumstances, the loss be shared in the same proportion. A partner is not accountable for a free gift made to him sively, although the reason of the gift may be some partnership transaction, except by agreement. Each partner may pay debts out of the partnership funds, receive debts, p drugs, &c., on the usual credit, and hire servants upon reasonable terms, and dismiss them, restrained from so doing by the partnership articles. A partner may not transfer his int number, so as to constitute him a member of the partnership, without the consent of the other. Where a patient has stipulated for the personal attendance of one particular member of the firm, the firm can enforce no claim, if the arrangement has not been strictly adhered to. The partnership may be dissolved by mutual agreement, or by the occurrence of any event made a ground for dissolution by the articles. A dissolution of the partnership may be obtained in equity, where one partner is systematically excluded from the business; or on the ground of permanent and wilful neglect of business, or gross misconduct as to partnership matters by one partner; or on account of the insanity of a partner, or if he become permanently incapacitated from attending to the business. In the case of a partnership between accoucheurs, it was held that the immoral conduct of one partner was alone a ground for dissolution, as the particular business of the firm would be materially affected thereby. A partnership is also dissolved, by operation of law, on the death or bankruptcy of a partner, or on his conviction for felony. Where a premium has been paid by one partner, the Court will, under certain circumstances, order an apportionment, and a return of part of such premium, on a dissolution. On a dissolution, the partners may separately carry on the business at any place, unless restrained by agreement.

Apothecaries.—A medical man keeping an open surgery for the sale or compounding of poisons, must not engage an unqualified assistant who is not registered under the Pharmacy Acts. No person may, under a penalty of 5*l.*, act as assistant to an apothecary in compounding and dispensing medicines without first passing an examination and obtaining a certificate from the Apothecaries' Company. In every written contract with an assistant, the remuneration should be expressed, and where the master is to be paid for the board and lodging, this also should be expressed, or there must at any rate be such an agreement or understanding to that effect as will satisfy a jury. In engagements of service in the medical profession, the rules of the profession, as, for instance, to determine the contract by notice, are considered as incorporated with the contract, unless excluded expressly or by implication. Where an assistant is to be remunerated by a portion of the profits, and not by a fixed salary, he is not necessarily on that account constituted a partner, as between the parties themselves. As regards third persons, he is considered a partner if he be paid by a share of the net profits, but not if he be paid by a share of the gross earnings, or by a sum of money calculated with reference to profits. Where no time is expressed, the engagement is considered a yearly one, and cannot be terminated before the end of the year, except by consent. A master is liable for contracts entered into by an apprentice or assistant, when he has authorized such contracts either expressly or by implication: as, for instance, where the assistant usually orders drugs and the master pays. This liability remains even after the assistant has been discharged, unless the person giving credit be made aware of the fact. Even if the contract be made in the assistant's name the master will be liable. A master is not criminally responsible for the acts of an assistant, unless he expressly command or personally co-operate in them. Thus, if a patient's death be caused by the negligence of an assistant, or by the negligence of an assistant added to the negligence of a master, the master cannot be convicted of manslaughter. A master is, however, as a rule, civilly liable for the wrongful acts of an assistant, unless they be beyond the ordinary scope of his employment. Thus, a medical man is liable to a civil suit for injury done to a patient by the want of proper skill in his assistant, but the patient will have to prove that the injury was actually caused by such want of skill. The practice of an apprentice or unqualified assistant to an apothecary must be confined to his master's house. No action will lie against a master to recover wages promised at the expiration of a period of service. An apprentice or assistant is liable to dismissal for a breach of duty to his master involving also a public duty, as for causing the death of a patient by gross negligence. An assistant rightfully discharged has no claim for wages beyond the period of service. A master is justified in discharging an assistant for wilful disobedience of any lawful order; for gross moral misconduct, whether pecuniary or otherwise; for habitual indolence in business, or conduct calculated to seriously injure his master's business; or for incapacity or permanent disability from illness. If a good ground of discharge exist, and it be known to the master, it is sufficient to justify the discharge, although he may not insist on that as the proper ground of discharge, or even although he may allege a different ground. A master may refuse to give any character or testimonial to an assistant or apprentice on leaving; but the occasions on which he may make to a person making inquiries as to the character or abilities of a former apprentice or assistant will be considered privileged. An apprentice, or a pupil with whom a premium has been paid, cannot be discharged for misconduct. The remedy is in an action on the covenants in the indenture.

Not to set up.—In agreements made between medical men and their apprentices or assistants, the apprentice or assistant usually stipulates that he will not, after the expiration of his term of service, exercise his profession within a certain distance of the place where his master is established at the time. Such a contract is not an injurious restraint of trade, for it gives an advantage in the unrestrained choice which such a stipulation gives to the employer of able assistants; and the security it affords that he will not withhold from his assistant information in the secrets of his profession, and the communication of his own skill and experience, from the fear of his afterwards having a rival in the same profession. The bond is valid, if given by an assistant after he has entered the service of the medical man, provided that the employment be still continued. Every such stipulation is valid, where the restraint is limited to anything like reasonable limits, but it must not extend to prohibit the person bound from exercising his profession at all, although the time of such restriction be limited. However, the restraint need not be limited to the life of the person in whose favour the stipulation is made, or to the time during which such person may carry on his business or profession. An agreement not to practise as a surgeon includes the practice of midwifery. If the medical man be resident in London, it is usual for the assistant to stipulate that he will not practise in London, and within a mile, or a mile and a half of the same; if the medical man reside in the suburbs, the restriction is usually confined to the place of residence and three miles from the same; if he reside in a country town, the restriction is usually confined to such town and ten miles from the same. Where no precise language is used, but the covenant is generally not to practise within so many miles of a certain place, the distance will be measured "as the crow flies," and not by roads and streets.

THE PRINCIPAL APPOINTMENTS HELD BY MEDICAL MEN.

Surgeon in the Army.
Surgeon in the Navy.
Surgeon in the Indian Army.
The principal regulations affecting these appointments are printed at length in another part of the work, and follow the List of "Medical Officers of the Army and Navy."

Surgeon in Passenger Ship.—Every person who is to be carried as medical practitioner in a passenger ship, must be registered as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary, except in the case of a foreign ship, when it is sufficient if he be authorized by law to practise as such in the country to which the ship belongs. His appointment is subject to the approval of the Board of Trade, and he must be provided with surgical instruments, to the satisfaction of such Board. Any person not possessing the necessary qualifications trying to proceed to sea as ship's surgeon, is liable to a penalty not exceeding 100*l*., and not less than 10*l*.

Surgeon in Merchant Ship.—Every person to be carried as medical practitioner in a merchant ship, must be registered as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary. He is, probably, entitled to sue for wages in the Admiralty Court as a "mariner," and consequently to claim the advantage of maritime lien.

Medical Inspector of Merchant Ships.—Any local marine board may, upon being required by the Board of Trade so to do, appoint and remove a medical inspector of ships for the port, who must be registered. At ports where there are no local marine boards, the Board of Trade may appoint and remove such inspectors. The remuneration of an inspector appointed by a local marine board is fixed by such board, but is subject to the control of the Board of Trade. Where the inspector is appointed by the Board of Trade, that Board also fixes his remuneration.

Medical Inspector of Seamen.—A medical inspector of seamen may be appointed in the same manner as a medical inspector of merchant ships. His remuneration is fixed by the Board of Trade, and paid out of the Mercantile Marine Fund.

Medical Inspector of Passenger Ships.—Is appointed by the Emigration Officer at the port of clearance. He must be duly registered.

Prison Surgeon.—The general superintendence of prisons is vested in prison commissioners, subject to the control of the Secretary of State, and assisted by inspectors. A duly registered surgeon is appointed to every gaol, house of correction, bridewell, or penitentiary in England, by the Secretary of State. He is not a subordinate officer, but he is bound to obey the directions of the gaoler in matters not regulated by Acts of Parliament. In addition to the ordinary duties of visiting, examining, and attending the prisoners, he is required to keep a journal, and to enter therein daily all circumstances that have come under his professional notice during the day; and also to be present at executions, and to deliver a certificate of death to the sheriff. He must not apply any painful test to a prisoner to detect malingering except by authority of an order from the visiting committee of justices or a commissioner. Any officer who has been in prison service for not less than twenty years, and is not less than sixty years of age, or who becomes incapable from confirmed sickness, age, or infirmity, or injury received in the actual execution of his duty, of executing his office in person, may, on the recommendation of the prison commissioners, be granted by the Treasury an annuity not exceeding two-thirds of his salary and emoluments, or a gratuity not exceeding the amount of his salary and emoluments for one year. One of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State appoints the surgeons and assistant surgeons to the convict prisons abroad. The appointment and duties of medical officers of prisons in Scotland and Ireland are now respectively regulated by the Acts 40 & 41 Vict. c. 53, and 40 & 41 Vict. c. 49.

Factory Surgeon.—Certifying surgeons, under the Factory and Workshop Act, are appointed by the inspectors of factories, who may, from time to time, revoke any such appointment. Every appointment and revocation may be annulled by a Secretary of State, on appeal. Where no certifying surgeon is resident within three miles of a factory or workshop the poor law medical officer holds such office for the time being. Every certifying surgeon must be a duly registered medical practitioner, and no person can be appointed certifying surgeon to any factory or workshop which he occupies, or in which, or in any business carried on in which, he is interested. His duties are to certify as to the fitness for employment of children and young persons about to be engaged in factories and workshops, and to investigate and report on accidents taking place in such factories or workshops. He must not grant a certificate except upon personal examination of the persons named therein. The examination must take place at the factory or workshop, unless the number to be examined is less than five, or unless, for some special reason, allowed in writing by the inspector. The certificate must show that the certifying surgeon is satisfied that the person named is of the age specified, and has been personally examined by him, and is not incapacitated by disease or bodily infirmity from doing the work required. If he refuses to grant a certificate, he may be required to give his reasons in writing. The surgeon and occupier may agree together as to the fees to be paid, but in the absence of any such agreement they will be as follows:—(1) When the examination is at a factory or workshop not exceeding one mile from the surgeon's residence 2*s*. 6*d*. for each visit, and 6*d*. for each person after the first five examined at that visit. (2) When the examination is at a factory or workshop more than one mile from the surgeon's residence the last-mentioned fees, and an additional 6*d*. for each complete half mile over and above the first. (3) When the examination is not at the factory or workshop, but at the residence of the surgeon or at some place appointed by the surgeon for the purpose, and which place, as well as the day

hour appointed for the purpose, shall be published in the prescribed manner—6*d.* for each person examined. These fees may be altered by a Secretary of State. The occupier is to pay the fees when the examination is complete or the certificate signed, unless some other time has been appointed by an inspector. When a certifying surgeon receives notice of an accident at a factory or workshop, he must proceed thither with the least possible delay, and make a full investigation as to the nature and cause of the death or injury caused by the accident, and within the next twenty-four hours send to the inspector a report thereof. For the purposes of such an investigation he has the same powers as an inspector, and also power to enter any room to which the person killed or injured may have been removed. For every investigation into the causes and extent of an accident at a factory or workshop, the certifying surgeon is entitled to a fee not exceeding 10*s.*, or such part thereof, not being less than 3*s.*, as a Secretary of State may consider a reasonable remuneration to him for his trouble. The following is the scale of fees for investigating and reporting on accidents sanctioned by the Secretary of State for the Home Department under the old Act. No new scale has yet been issued. For the examinations and report on any accident which may not require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than one mile, 3*s.* For the examinations and report on any accident which may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than one mile, and not more than two miles, 4*s.* For the examinations and report on any accident which may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than two miles, and not more than three miles, 5*s.* Where any examination or report may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than three miles, a further sum of 6*d.* for each half mile that such distance may exceed three miles. In any intricate case, or when any peculiar circumstances arise, either in making the inquiry, or framing the report, the inspectors may recommend a higher fee than those above stated, so that no fee exceeding 10*s.* be assigned for any one accident, and provided the reason for assigning such higher fee be stated by the inspector. The distances mentioned above apply to the number of miles which the surgeon is compelled to travel to make the examinations, taking the shortest way in his power, and reference to the ground which he has to pass over in proceeding to the works, together with any additional distance which he may have to travel to examine the person injured. The distance which he has travelled in returning either from the investigation at the works, or from the examination of the person injured, is not to be added to the mileage, nor must the distance travelled to the place where the injured person is examined be added unless he has had to travel a greater distance than he would have done in returning from the investigation at the works direct to his residence.

Medical Officer of the Privy Council.—This officer is now attached to, and under the control of, the Local Government Board. He is appointed by the Privy Council, who may remove him at their pleasure. His duty is to report to the Local Government Board as to matters affecting the public health. His salary is fixed by the Commissioners of the Treasury, but must not exceed 1500*l.* per annum. He is paid out of moneys provided by Parliament.

Medical Officers under the Contagious Diseases Acts.—The Admiralty, or Secretary of State for War, may appoint, under these Acts, Visiting Surgeons and assistants (who must be registered) in places to which the Acts extend. Their duties are to examine women who are common prostitutes, either upon a justice's order, or upon the voluntary submission of the women, in writing, and to give certificates as to their state of health. The same authorities may appoint duly qualified medical men as inspectors of hospitals, and assistants, at places to which the Acts extend. Their duties are to report as to the suitability of buildings proposed to be used under the Acts as certified hospitals for the reception and detention of women affected with contagious diseases, and to visit and inspect such certified hospitals from time to time. The compulsory clauses of the Acts are now at present enforced.

Medical Visitors of Lunatics.—Two of these officers are appointed from time to time by the Lord Chancellor. Every candidate must be a physician in actual practice, and must not have been within the two preceding years interested in any house licensed for the reception of lunatics. The salary is 1500*l.* per annum, but the officer is after his appointment debarred from practising his profession. Travelling and incidental expenses are allowed, and the Lord Chancellor may order a superannuation allowance to any Visitor who has served for twenty years and is above sixty years of age, or who is disabled by permanent infirmity. All Chancery lunatics are to be visited and seen at least twice a year, and the interval between successive visits must not exceed eight months.

Medical Officers in Parishes and Unions.—Medical officers in parishes and unions, comprising a district medical officer and a workhouse medical officer, are appointed by a majority of the guardians present at a meeting of the Board consisting of more than three, or by three, if no more be present. The guardians may also, in cases of emergency, appoint one or more medical officers to act temporarily. A medical officer paid by salary may not be appointed a guardian. This does not apply in the case of a medical officer who has been pensioned off. As a rule, the same person may be appointed medical officer for the workhouse and also for the district. These officers are appointed by virtue of orders issued by the Local Government Board, which also defines their duties, &c., by orders issued from time to time. Every medical officer must be registered as qualified to practise both medicine and surgery. The guardians may suspend a medical officer from the discharge of his duties, and the Local Government Board may, at their discretion, remove him from office. Subject to these provisions, a medical officer holds office until he dies, resigns, or is proved insane. Under very special circumstances, the guardians may appoint as district officer a medical man registered with one qualification only. Partners cannot be appointed joint medical officers of a district, but they may be appointed individually as medical officers of distinct districts in the same or in any other union. A medical officer may be transferred from one district to another by the guardians without vacating his appointment. The transfer can only be made with his consent. Every medical officer must name to the guardians a duly registered substitute to whom applications for medicines and attendance may be made in case of his absence from home. He may not expressly delegate to his assistant the duties of his office, but he may name an assistant or partner as his substitute. The guardians may object to the appointment of any person as substitute of whom they may not approve. As a general rule, the guardians may not assign to any medical officer a district which exceeds in extent the area of 15,000 statute acres, or which contains a population exceeding 15,000 persons. This does not apply to Wales, but no such district therein may be assigned to a medical officer residing more than seven miles from any part of any parish included within such district. In addition to the regular salary, the guardians may, with the consent of the Local Government Board, pay to medical officers reasonable compensation for extraordinary services. A medical officer is entitled to an extra fee of not less than 10*s.*, or more than 20*s.*, for attending a woman in or immediately after childbirth, and to a fee of 2*l.* where great difficulty has occurred in the delivery, or long subsequent attendance has been necessary. He is also entitled to charge extra for services performed on board ship in compliance with any regulation of the Local Government Board, and such charges are to be paid by the captain of the vessel. A Poor Law medical officer who, in the course of his duties, vaccinates any person resident in the house of a person ill with small-pox, who has never been vaccinated or had the small-pox, or who re-vaccinates any such person, who has never been re-vaccinated, is entitled to be paid the same fees in every such case as he would be entitled to receive if he were the public vaccinator for the district. He must, however, transmit the same certificates as he would be required to transmit if he were such public vaccinator. Remuneration for the operations mentioned below is not included in the salary of a district medical officer, but they are paid for after the following rates:—Treatment of compound fractures of the thigh, or treatment of compound fractures or compound dislocation of the leg, or amputation of leg, arm, foot, or hand, or operation for strangulated hernia—5*l.* Treatment of simple fractures or simple dislocations of the thigh or leg, including fracture of the neck of the thigh-bone or of the malleolus externus; but not of the knee-cap, tarsus, metatarsus, or toes—3*l.* Treatment of dislocations or simple or compound fractures of the arm, including dislocation of the shoulder, elbow, or wrist, and fracture of the humerus, ulna, and radius; but not fracture of the ribs, clavicle, scapula, acromion, elbow, carpus, metacarpus, fingers, or thumbs—1*l.* These rates include all charges for apparatus, &c., and for future attendance. If the patient does not survive the operation thirty-six hours, only half the above fees are paid. No such fees become payable with respect to amputation except in cases of sudden accident, immediately threatening life, unless the medical officer has before the operation, obtained, at his own cost, the advice of a registered practitioner, qualified to practise either medicine or surgery in England and Wales, and has procured from him a certificate stating that, in his opinion, it was right and proper that such amputation should be the performed. If several of such fees become payable with respect to the same person, at the same time, in consequence of the same injury, only one (the highest) fee is payable. The guardians may also allow extra remuneration for any other surgical case presenting special difficulty. medical officer must have attained the age of sixty years, and have served as such for twenty years before he is eligible for superannuation. He need not have devoted his whole time to the service of the union or parish by which the superannuation is granted, nor is his claim to such an allowance affected by the fact that he has acted as sanitary officer. The allowance must not exceed two thirds of his salary. It is payable in trust only. Every medical officer must give to the guardians, when required, any reasonable information as to a pauper who is or has been under his care and must give a certificate as to the health of any child under fourteen to be bound apprentice by them. The workhouse or other parish officers must pay him for attendance as private patients. He is liable to a heavy penalty if he induces any poor person to leave his parish with intent to cause such person to become chargeable to some other parish. He must examine every pauper about to be removed to an asylum, on the day of removal, and certify whether he can be so removed with safety. He must give notice to the clerk or medical officer of health of the sanitary authority, of the occurrence of any case of contagious, infectious, or epidemic disease of a dangerous character among his pauper patients. He may not employ a midwife as his substitute. He must visit once a quarter every pauper lunatic in his district not in an asylum or licensed house, and must also, under a penalty of 10*l.*, give notice to the relieving officer or one of the overseers, of any pauper lunatic in his district who ought to be sent to an asylum, within three days after obtaining knowledge thereof. A medical officer of a union who has been pensioned off is not disqualified from being elected a guardian. A medical officer whose appointment has not been made under seal is not entitled to recover his fees, salary, or damages, in case of an illegal dismissal. The guardians may employ their medical officer to prepare or collect information to enable them to effectually discharge their duties, and pay them specially for such services. A medical officer is not bound, in cases of emergency, to wait for order before giving medical relief, but the guardians may disallow his claim for fees. The Local Government Board disapprove of the appointment of the same person as medical officer of the union and medical officer of health.

Public Vaccinator.—Public Vaccinators are appointed by the guardians in unions and parishes. The form of contract to be employed on such occasions is prescribed by the Local Government Board. Every Public Vaccinator must be duly registered with qualifications both in medicine and surgery, and must have obtained a certificate of instruction in vaccination from some public vaccinator authorized by the Privy Council to grant such certificates. Vaccinating stations for instruction and examination are established in London, Birmingham, Bristol, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sheffield, Exeter, Edinburgh, and Glasgow. It is the duty of a public vaccinator to vaccinate any child resident within his district brought to him for that purpose, and examine the same the following week, and give a certificate, after a prescribed form, according to the success or non-success of the operation. He must not certify that a child is insusceptible of successful vaccination unless he has vaccinated it three times unsuccessfully. He must transmit a certificate of each case of successful vaccination to the vaccination officer for his district within seven days after he has ascertained that the operation has been successfully performed; and certificate that a child is unfit for or insusceptible of successful vaccination within seven days after the examination of such child. A public vaccinator who finds, upon personal examination, that a child resident in his district, not vaccinated by him, has been successfully vaccinated, may, upon request, grant a certificate to such effect to the parent of the child. This will have the same force as a certificate of successful vaccination by himself. All necessary forms can be obtained from the Local Government Board. Re-vaccination must be limited by the following conditions—(1) That, so far as he can ascertain, the applicant has attained the age of 15 years, or, if during any immediate outbreak of small-pox, 12 years, and has not before been successfully vaccinated. (2) That, in his opinion, the proposed re-vaccination is not, for any sufficient medical reason, undesirable. (3) That he can afford lymph without postponing the claims for primary vaccination. The contract with the guardians may only provide for payment for successful vaccinations, and the rate for primary vaccinations must not be lower than the following scale—viz., For every such vaccination done at an appointed station, situated at or within one mile from the residence of the vaccinator, or in the workhouse of the parish—1*s.* 6*d.* For every such vaccination done at any station over one mile and under two miles from his residence—2*s.* For every such vaccination done at any station over two miles from his residence—3*s.* Distance to be measured according to the nearest carriage-road. A public vaccinator may not charge any fee to the parent or other person for his certificate. The fees for successful re-vaccination are two-thirds of the fees above given. On reports made to the Local Government Board, awards not exceeding one shilling per case are granted to public vaccinators who have fulfilled certain conditions. The following is an epitome of the regulations under which such awards are made:—1. Awards will not be given to the vaccinators of districts where contracts approved by the central office are not in force, or where the arrangements in operation are contrary to those recommended by the central authority. 2. No award will be given to a public vaccinator who has not properly complied with all statutory and other requirements in connection with his contract, or who has not himself habitually performed the duties of his office, or if there is a deficiency in the average quantity of the infantile public vaccination and the vaccinator has conduced to the deficiency by want of punctuality or by any other fault in relation to the public. 3. No award will be given unless the quality of the vaccination work comes up to a certain standard of merit; the scars produced being thoroughly well marked in their foveation. Where this is satisfactory, the work will be divided into two grades according to the area of foveated surface—viz., First grade, scars having collectively at least a square inch total area. Second grade, scars less than the above, but having collectively at least one-third of a square inch total area. The second grade is only allowable in cases of first awards, and no vaccinator who has once received an award for work of the second grade will be deemed eligible for an award unless his work reaches the first grade. 4. No award will be made to a vaccinator who has not held his office for at least a year, nor to any person who at the time of inspection is not actually in office as the public vaccinator. 5. The cases to be taken into account for the purposes of calculating the amount to be awarded are the successful infantile vaccinations recorded in the vaccinator's registers (and verified by the board of guardians) from the quarter-day preceding the last inspection to the quarter-day preceding the present inspection. A penalty not exceeding 20*s.* may be imposed on any person preventing a public vaccinator from taking lymph from a child. The Local Government Board recommend that the operations should be performed with fresh lymph from arm to arm, and that in populous districts the attendances should be given at weekly intervals. The cases should not, however, be divided between too many days, but be distributed over too many vaccinating days, so that in districts which are not populous, vaccination should be performed at certain periods of the year, as in April and October, special attendances being then given for a few successive weeks, according to the population. The vaccination stations must be within the district for which they are to serve, and must not be fixed at the premises of union workhouses.

Vaccination Officer.—It is the duty of the guardians of every union and parish to appoint and pay one or more vaccination officers, and to assign to them districts coinciding either with a vaccination district, or with a district or districts of a registrar of births and deaths. These officers are subject to the jurisdiction of the Local Government Board, from which source they are supplied with appropriate books and forms. The appointment is to be made by vote of a majority of the guardians and to be reported within seven days to the Local Government Board. Assistants may be appointed temporarily, in case of an outbreak of small-pox. A vaccination officer holds office until he dies, resigns, or is removed by or with the consent of the Local Government Board; if he refuses to acquiesce in a change of district, he can only be removed after six months' notice. If he resigns without, he must agree to give one month's notice of resignation, or forfeit a stipulated sum. He may not, except by permission of the Local Government Board, perform the duties of his office by deputy. He must obey all lawful orders of the guardians and of the Local Government Board. The salary or remuneration is to be directed or approved of by the Local Government Board. It is payable on the usual quarter-days, but the guardians may pay such proportion as they think fit, on account, at the termination of each month. The vaccination officer must make up his account and submit his books and certificates to the guardians each quarter, and the guardians may postpone payment of the salary or balance of the salary till he does so. He must produce the books and certificates to the guardians whenever required. All fees received are to be accounted for to the guardians. Certificates of successful vaccination are to be transmitted by the vaccination officer within seven days after it has been ascertained that the operation has been successfully performed, and certificates that a child is unfit for or insusceptible of successful vaccination within seven days after the examination of the child upon which such certificate was granted. No fee is payable for the registration of any certificate of vaccination. The registrar of births and deaths must transmit once at least in every month a list of births and deaths within his district to each vaccination officer whose district wholly or partially falls within his own. Every vaccination officer must keep a book and enter minutes of the notices of vaccination given to him as above, and register the certificates transmitted to him. His register must be open to searchers at reasonable times; and he must, on demand, give a copy under his hand, or under that of his deputy, of any entry therein, on payment of a fee of 6*d*. for the search, and 3*d*. for each copy. He must within one week after the first day of January and the first day of July in each year, make a list of all cases in which certificates of vaccination have not been duly received by him during the last preceding half year, and submit the same to the next meeting of the guardians of the union or parish wherein he acts. The Local Government Board is empowered to make rules, orders, and regulations with respect to proceedings to be taken by guardians, or their officers, for the enforcement of the provisions of the Vaccination Acts. The Board have ordered that the vaccination officer must take necessary proceedings under the Acts, when directed by the Board so to do; that he must act as registrar of vaccination for the district to which he is appointed, and see that all children resident therein are duly vaccinated; that he must keep a report book, to be provided by the Board; that he must make a house-to-house visitation on an outbreak of small-pox, if directed so to do; and, generally, that he must keep, and be responsible for, all books, registers, and forms supplied to him.

Analyst, under the Sale of Food and Drugs Act.—In London, the commissioners of sewers, in the rest of the metropolis, the vestries and district boards, and in other parts of England, the court of quarter sessions of every county, and the town council of every borough having a separate court of quarter sessions, or a separate police establishment, are empowered, and when required so to do by the Local Government Board, it is their duty to appoint one or more persons "possessing competent knowledge, skill, and experience," as analysts of all articles of food and drugs, sold within their respective jurisdictions. The appointment and removal of such officers is subject to the approval of the Local Government Board. The town council of a borough may engage the analyst of another borough, or of the county, to act as analyst of such borough. Any purchaser of an article of food or of a drug, whether in a shop or in the public streets, is entitled to have the same analysed by the analyst for his district, on payment of a sum not exceeding 10*s*. 6*d* and to receive from him a certificate of the result. If no analyst has been appointed for the district the purchaser may resort to any other analyst, and make the best bargain he can with him. The analyst must in like manner, and on similar terms, analyse any article of food, or drug submitted to him by a medical officer of health, inspector of nuisances, inspector of weights and measures, inspector of markets, or police constable acting by order of the local authority, and, with all convenient speed, certify the result. It is no defence to proceedings under the Act that the adulterated article was purchased only for analysis. An article is deemed adulterated if defective in nature, substance or quality. The form of certificate of analysis is prescribed by the Act (38 & 39 Vict. c. 63). Articles for analysis may be sent through the post. The analyst must report quarterly to the authority appointing him, the number of articles analysed by him during the foregoing quarter, specifying the result of each analysis, and the sum paid to him in respect thereof. On proceeding under the Act, the analyst's certificate is sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated, but the defendant may require that the analyst shall be called as a witness. The justices may, in their discretion, on the hearing of a complaint, send any article of food, or drug to be analysed by the chemical officers at Somerset House.

Medical Officer of Health.—In the metropolis, every vestry and district board must appoint one or more legally qualified medical practitioner or practitioners of skill and experience as officer or officers of health, and may remove such officer or officers at their pleasure. The principal duties of such officers are to inspect and report periodically on the sanitary condition of their districts, to ascertain the existence of diseases, more especially epidemics, increase the rate of mortality, to point out the existence of dangerous nuisances, and to point out the best means of checking or preventing the spread of epidemics and contagious diseases, and the most efficient modes of ventilating churches, schools, &c. within such districts.

Under the Public Health Act, 1875, the whole of England, with the exception of the metropolis, is divided into sanitary districts, called respectively, urban and rural sanitary districts. Urban sanitary districts consist (with a few exceptions) of municipal boroughs, districts under Improvement Commissioners established under Local Acts, and districts under Local Boards formed under the Public Health or Local Government Act, the sanitary authority being respectively the town council, the commissioners under the Local Act, or the Local Board. Rural sanitary districts consist entirely of unions not being coincident in area with, nor wholly included in, an urban sanitary district, excluding the portions of the union which are situate within urban sanitary district: the sanitary authorities are the boards of guardians of the respective unions which constitute those districts, but in certain cases some of the guardians are precluded from acting. The guardians may delegate their powers to a committee. Every urban sanitary authority must appoint, from time to time, a medical officer of health, being a legally qualified medical practitioner with a registrable qualification in medicine and surgery, unless the Local Board dispense with one such qualification; and every rural sanitary authority must appoint, from time to time, one or more such officers, similarly qualified. With the sanction of the Local Government Board, the same person may be appointed medical officer for two or more districts, by the joint or several appointment of the sanitary authorities of such districts, in which case the Local Government Board prescribe the mode of election, and apportion the election expenses. With the likewise tion, a district medical officer of a union may be appointed medical officer of health. Medical officers of health are to report as to the condition of premises dangerous to health or unfit for human habitation, and to deliver copies of every such report to the clerk of the local authority in writing; and to inspect and report on the condition of any premises on the representation of four or more householders that disease exists therein. A penalty not exceeding 20*l*. may be imposed on any person obstructing the officer in the performance of these duties. They may, moreover, exercise any powers with which an inspector of nuisances is invested by the Public Health Act, 1875—that is to say, they may enter and inspect premises where they may believe a nuisance to exist, between the hours of 9 A.M. and 6 P.M., to ground proceedings, after a demand made personally or in writing; they may order the removal of accumulations of filth within twenty-four hours; may enter and inspect slaughter-houses and butchers' shops, and seize any meat unfit for food, and take it before justices to be condemned, without notice to the owner; may inspect or examine all kinds of food exposed for sale or in the course of preparation for sale; may enter premises to inspect and report on animals kept so as to be injurious to health, as to overcrowded houses, or houses in a dangerously insanitary condition, as to the ventilation of factories, workshops, &c., not under the operation of any special Act, and as to nuisances arising from noxious vapours and from offensive trades; to ascertain the course of drains and inspect works, and to remove or abate a nuisance, in case of non-compliance without infringement of the order of justices, to report whether the cleansing of any house or articles which tend to prevent or check infection, and to give directions as to manner in which the same shall be cleansed and purified, &c. &c. They may also take samples of milk in the course of delivery, for analysis. Under rules issued by the Local Government Board, the duties of medical officers of health, the part of whose salaries are repaid out of monies voted by Parliament, are more particularly defined as set forth below in the case of such officers part of whose salaries is so repaid; and, further, each such officer must within seven days after his appointment report the same in writing to the Board.

The Local Government Board may, on representation being made to it that the appointment of a medical officer of health for two or more districts in the same county would be advantageous, by order unite them for the purpose of appointing such officer, and make regulations as to the mode of appointment and removal, and as to the payment of salary and expenses. No other medical officer of health may be appointed for any constituent district, except as assistant to the officer appointed for the united districts. A district medical officer may be appointed such an assistant. No urban district containing a population of 25,000 and upwards may, however, be united to any union.

Medical officers of health are entitled to be supplied with information as to registered deaths and cases of a dangerous character among paupers. Such information will be furnished by weekly returns from the registrar of births and deaths, a copy of new cases, from the district medical officer's list, to be supplied by the clerk, and reports from the poor law medical officers.

If the sanitary authorities so desire, part of the salaries of medical officers of health is paid out of monies voted by Parliament. In such case, the Local Government Board acquire the same powers as they have in the case of a district medical officer of a union, with regard to the qualification, appointment, duties, salary, and tenure of office of such officers. The regulations of the Local Government Board direct that in every such case a medical officer of health shall be registered and shall also (unless the rule be dispensed with in any particular instance by the Board) possess a double qualification which might be registered; that a statement shall be submitted to the Board showing the population and extent of the district or districts for which the sanitary authority proposes to appoint a medical officer or officers of health, and the salary proposed; that the appointment shall be made only after the Board has approved of the proposals submitted to them; that no appointment of medical officer of health shall be made unless an advertisement of the salary proposed to be assigned, and of the day of election, has appeared in some public local newspaper at least seven days prior to the day on which the appointment is to be made; that the appointment shall be by a majority of the members present at the meeting; that the appointment shall within seven days, be reported to the Board; that on a vacancy the same rules shall be observed unless, with the approval of the Board, fresh arrangements are substituted; that an appointment may be renewed if the authority at a meeting held after notice given at one of the ordinary meetings next preceding such meeting pass a resolution for the purpose, and obtain the sanction of the Board thereto; that if a medical officer be incapacitated by sickness or accident, the sanitary authority may appoint and pay a temporary substitute, but that the step must be immediately reported to the Board; that every medical officer shall hold office for such period as the sanitary authority may, with the sanction of the Board, determine, or until he die, or resign, or be removed by the sanitary authorities, with the consent of the Board, or by the Board, or be proved incapable; that the authority may suspend an officer from the discharge of his duties, but must report the same forthwith to the Board; that the salary to be paid must be approved by the Board, and that the authority may, with the consent of the Board, pay a further compensation for extraordinary services or special circumstances connected with his duties or the necessities of the district; that the salary shall accrue from day to day, and shall be payable quarterly; that if any medical officer shall become to acquiesce in any necessary change in regard to districts, duties, or salary, his appointment may, with the consent of the Board, be determined at six months' notice; that no person shall be appointed who does not agree to give one month's notice of resignation, or to forfeit a sum agreed on as liquidated damages.

The Local Government Board further directs that, in every such case, the duties of a medical officer of health shall be defined to be as follows:—1. He shall inform himself, as far as practicable, respecting all influences affecting or threatening to affect injuriously the public health within the district. 2. He shall inquire into and ascertain by such means as are at his disposal the causes, extent and distribution of diseases within the district, and ascertain to what extent the same have arisen on conditions capable of removal or mitigation. 3. He shall by inspection of the district, both systematically at certain periods, and at intervals, as occasion may require, keep himself informed of the conditions injurious to health existing therein. 4. He shall be prepared to advise the sanitary authority on all matters affecting the health of the district, and on all sanitary points involved in the action of the sanitary authority; and, in cases requiring it, he shall study, for the guidance of the sanitary authorities or of the justices, as to any matter in respect of which the certificate of a medical officer of health or a medical practitioner is required as the basis, or in aid of sanitary action. 5. He shall advise the sanitary authority with reference to the framing and working of bye-laws and regulations. 6. On receiving information of the outbreak of a contagious, infectious, or epidemic disease he shall visit the spot, inquire into the causes and circumstances of the outbreak, advise as to measures for preventing the extension of the disease, and assist in executing the same. 7. He shall, subject to the instructions of the sanitary authority, direct or superintend the work of the inspector of nuisances, and on receiving information from the inspector of nuisances that his intervention is required owing to a nuisance injurious to health or over-crowding in a house, take the necessary steps authorized by the statutes in that behalf. 8. He shall, if directed by the sanitary authority, or if he deems it advisable, inspect any animal, carcase, meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, fruit, vegetables, corn, bread, or flour exposed for sale or intended for food, and if he finds the same diseased, unsound, or unfit for food, he shall give directions for the same to be seized, in order to be dealt with by a justice. He may, also, on making complaint on oath, obtain an order from a justice to search for unsound food. 9. He shall perform all duties imposed upon him by bye-laws or regulations of the sanitary authority. 10. He shall inquire into any offensive process of trade carried on within the district and report on the best means for preventing any nuisance or injury to health therefrom. 11. He shall attend at the office of the sanitary authority, or some other appointed place, as directed. 12. He shall report in writing to the sanitary authority his proceedings, any measures necessary to be taken for the improvement or protection of the public health within the district, and with respect to the sickness and mortality within the district. 13. He shall keep a book or books, to be provided by the sanitary authority, and shall enter therein his visits, with notes of his observations and instructions, the date and nature of all applications made to him, and the date and result of any action taken thereon or on previous reports, and shall produce such books to the sanitary authorities when required. 14. He shall prepare an annual report to the end of December in each year, comprising an account of the sanitary state of his district generally at the end of the year, tabular statements of the sickness and mortality within the district, classified according to diseases, ages, and localities; a summary of action taken during the year for preventing the spread of disease; an account of proceedings taken or advised under the sanitary Acts, and of the supervision which has been exercised by him over places or houses, with the nature and results of any proceedings in reference thereto; and of inquiries made by him as to conditions injurious to health in his district; and also a record of action taken by him, or on his advice, with reference to offensive trades, factories, and workshops. 15. He shall give immediate information to the Local Government Board of the outbreak of any dangerous epidemic disease within his district, and shall send to the Board a quarterly return of sickness and death within his district, and also copies of all his reports. 16. In matters not specifically provided for, he shall obey the instructions of the Board, and the lawful orders and directions of the sanitary authority. 17 When the Board shall make regulations under s. 134 of the "Public Health Act, 1875," and shall declare the same in force in any area comprising the whole or part of his district, he shall observe the same so far as they relate to or concern his office. The Local Government Board further advises the local sanitary authorities to offer adequate remuneration.

Further duties are imposed upon medical officers of health by "The Artizans and Labourers' Dwellings Improvement Act, 1875." Such duties are the same as those under the head next immediately following. The Canal Boats Act empowers a medical officer of health to call upon a sanitary authority within whose district a canal or part of a canal is situate, to cause such steps to be taken as may appear requisite to him for preventing any infectious disorder which may break out on a canal boat from spreading. An inspector of factories and workshops may take with him a medical officer of health to investigate the sanitary condition of the premises. The rural sanitary authority must, on receiving a report to the effect that the water supply is defective from a medical officer of health, provide, or cause to be provided, a proper supply for every occupied dwelling house. A Medical Officer of Health has, in the case of retail bakehouses, the same powers of entry, inspection, taking proceedings, and otherwise, as a factory inspector.

The Board have no power to limit the action of the sanitary authorities to any one of the three kinds of appointment of medical officers open to them. Their general policy is to advise that whenever the services of an officer possessing special and superior qualifications for the office are likely to be obtainable, a combined district should be formed and a joint appointment made, the main object being to ensure the appointment of an officer for a district large enough to occupy his whole time, at a salary sufficient to command the services of a competent person.

Medical Officer, under "The Artizans and Labourers' Dwellings Improvement Acts," the Metropolis.—In the Metropolis, the Metropolitan Board of Works may, at any time, with the assent of a Secretary of State, appoint one or more regularly qualified medical practitioners practitioners, with such remuneration as they think fit, to carry the above-mentioned Act into effect in the Metropolis. Such officer is to be deemed a medical officer of health of a local authority. His duty is to make representation, whenever he sees cause so to do, to the local authority, that any houses or courts, within a certain area under their jurisdiction, are unfit for human habitation; that a low condition of health prevails in any such area which may be attributed to the closeness, bad arrangement, or bad condition of the houses within such area, or to any sanitary defect, and that such evils and defects cannot be remedied otherwise than by an improvement scheme for the reconstruction or rearrangement of the houses within such area. In addition to this, if two or more justices of the peace, or twelve or more ratepayers within his jurisdiction, complain to him of the unhealthiness of any area within such jurisdiction, it will be his duty to forthwith inspect such area, and to make a representation stating the facts of the case, and whether, in his opinion such area is unhealthy or not for the purposes of the Act. In the case of illness or unavoidable absence of the medical officer, the Board may, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, appoint a duly qualified medical man to perform his powers and duties for a period not exceeding six months. Such officer may also report as to the existence of any obstructive building, which stops ventilation, or otherwise conduces to make other buildings unfit for habitation, or prevents proper measures from being taken for rendering them healthy, and the local authority has power to act upon the suggestions in his report.

THE HABITUAL DRUNKARDS ACT.

By virtue of this Act, which expires at the end of the year 1889, Justices of the Peace may grant a licence for any period not exceeding thirteen months to any person, or to two or more persons jointly, to keep a retreat for habitual drunkards. One of the licensees must reside on the premises and be responsible for its management, and a duly qualified medical man must be employed as attendant, unless the licensee is himself on the medical register. No such licence can be granted to any person licensed to keep a lunatic asylum. Power is given to transfer the licence, and to remove the drunkards from a retreat which becomes unfit for their habitation. An habitual drunkard who wishes to be admitted into a retreat must apply in writing to the licensee, and state the time during which he undertakes to remain. The application must be accompanied by the statutory declaration of two persons that the applicant is an habitual drunkard, and his signature must be attested by two justices, who must state that he understood the effect of his application, which must have been explained to him. The applicant may then be detained for the whole of the specified term, which must not exceed twelve calendar months. The licensee must within two clear days after the reception of an applicant, send a copy of his application to the clerk to the Justices or Clerk of the Peace, and to the Secretary of State. A Justice may discharge a drunkard from a retreat on the written application of the licensee. An inspector and assistant-inspector of retreats are appointed by the Secretary of State, and they must inspect every retreat at least twice a year, and make an annual return to the Secretary of State, who may discharge a drunkard at any time in his own discretion, or on a report from the inspector. Any Judge of the High Court, or a County Court Judge in his district, may make an order to visit and examine any person detained in a retreat, and on receiving a report as to such person may order his discharge. A Justice may, by order, at the request of a licensee, permit a drunkard to reside out of the retreat for not more than two months, with a person named in the order, and such absence is to be reckoned as the period of detention. A drunkard may forfeit his leave of absence by escaping or failing to be restrained from drinking, and the permit may be revoked by the Secretary of State or by the Justices who granted it. The penalty for an offence against the Act is a fine not exceeding [illegible] or imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months. It is an offence against the Act for a licensee not to comply with its provisions, or to neglect a drunkard in his retreat, or for any person to detain in a retreat or neglect such a drunkard, or to help him to escape or to bring into the retreat, or give to a drunkard any intoxicating drink or sedative or stimulant drug, without the authority of the attendant or medical attendant. A drunkard who does not conform to the rules of a retreat may be fined [illegible] or imprisoned for seven days, and a drunkard who escapes may be apprehended on a warrant. On the death of a drunkard in a retreat, a statement of the cause of death, with the names of those present at the death, must be drawn up by the medical attendant, and sent by the licensee to the Registrar of Deaths, the Clerk to the Justices or Clerk of the Peace, and to the person who made the last payment for the drunkard. There is an appeal from a conviction under the Act. Actions against any person for anything done or intended to be done under the Act, must be brought within two years, and a month's notice of action must be given. The application for a licence must be accompanied by a plan, on a scale of not less than one-eighth of an inch to a foot, of the proposed retreat, and a description of the dimensions of every room, of the arrangements for separation of sexes, of the land available for exercise, and of the applicant's interest in the house. Notice of application must be made not less than ten days before the sessions or meeting at which it is to be considered. A fee of 10*s.* is to be paid for the licence, which must bear a stamp of 5*l.*, and 10*s.* for every patient above ten intended to be admitted. Each renewal must bear a similar stamp.

RECOVERY OF FEES AND CHARGES FROM PRIVATE PATIENTS AND PUBLIC AUTHORITIES.

Every duly registered medical man is entitled to demand and recover in any court of law, with costs of suit, reasonable charges for professional aid, advice, and visits, and the costs of any medicines or other medical or surgical appliances rendered or supplied by him to his patients, and a person is entitled to recover any such charges, unless he can prove, upon the trial, that he is a registered. Like proof is required from a medical man who files a bill to obtain sums due to him personally from a testator's estate, or who is suing on a promissory note given for professional services. A medical man may recover such charges if he be registered at the time of trial, although he may not have been registered when he gave his professional attendance. He must, however, have been examined, and become qualified at the time of the services in respect of which he seeks to recover. A firm, one member whereof is registered as a Surgeon and Apothecary, and the other as a Surgeon only, may recover on a joint claim for attendances and medicines supplied in both capacities, and it would seem that a firm may recover in like manner, although one of the members thereof be unregistered. A registered practitioner may sue for services rendered by an unregistered assistant, and an unregistered assistant may sue a registered practitioner for his salary, but an unregistered practitioner cannot recover on a contract made with a registered practitioner to attend his patients, at a fixed salary, during his absence. A copy of the medical register is evidence that the persons named therein are registered, and the absence of a name from such register is evidence, until the contrary be proved, that such person is not registered. A master is not bound to provide medical assistance for a servant, and a medical man who attends a servant must, unless he has an express understanding to the contrary with the master, look to the servant for payment. An infant may contract and render himself liable for medicines and medical aid, and a wife may pledge her husband's credit for the same. The customs of the profession are considered as imported into all contracts between medical men and their patients. A medical man may recover charges according to a scale varying with the class of patients visited, if the same be fair and reasonable. The following charges have been held to be reasonable: 50*l.* for a first and 20*l.* for a subsequent operation, with 75 guineas for 75 visits. An uncertificated bankrupt may recover for professional attendance and advice. The right of a medical man to recover does not depend upon his effecting a cure. The general rule is that if there has been no beneficial service at all there shall be no pay; but if some benefit has been derived, though not to the extent expected, this shall go to the amount of the demand, leaving the patient to his action for negligence. A physician is now, in the absence of a distinct understanding to the contrary, entitled to be paid for his services, unless restrained by a bye-law of the college to which he may belong. A person registered with a surgical qualification only is not entitled to recover for attendance in cases not belonging to his branch of medicine, as, for instance, in a case of typhus fever. He may, however, dispense and administer medicines as subordinate and subservient to a surgical case which he is attending. The test is that where, in any particular instance, the medical man judges of the malady by the symptoms of the patient in regard to the internal functions of the body, and applies himself to cure it, not by manual operation externally, but by the administration of medicine internally, the case cannot be classed as a surgical one. There is no rule of law which prevents an apothecary from making distinct charges for attendances and for medicines. A registered apothecary is not precluded from recovering for medicines and attendances furnished in London, although possessing an extra-urban licence only. In all cases where a servant falls ill or meets with an accident, and is unable to pay for necessary medical assistance, the parish is bound to supply such assistance although the servant may not have previously stood in need of parish relief. If a deputy overseer, or even a mere stranger, direct a surgeon to attend a poor man, such person is liable for the surgeon's bill. A medical man called on by the police to visit a sick person in a station-house within the metropolitan district may claim the sum of 3*s.* 6*d.* for every such visit paid in the daytime, and the sum of 7*s.* 6*d.* for every such visit paid between the hours of 11 P.M. and 6 A.M. A certificate of attendance should be obtained, at the time, from the inspector on duty. The same fees have been recovered for similar services in various places in England, as being fair and reasonable. A medical man (not being a parish officer) who attends any sick on board ship, under regulations made by the Local Government Board for such purpose, is entitled to charge at the same rate as he is in the habit of doing in the case of private patients of the same rank, with extra charge for distance. Such charges are payable by the captain, on behalf of the owner. A medical man who reports to an Insurance Company as to the state of health of a patient, can only recover from the Company a fee for such service upon an express undertaking to pay such fee, although the report be made upon a form supplied by the office. A guard, or the superintendent of the station of a railway, has no authority to bind the Company by a contract entered into with a medical man to attend a passenger injured by an accident on the railway. The general manager of a railway may, however, bind the Company by such a contract to attend a servant of the railway injured in an accident in the performance of his duties; and an inspector of accidents has authority to send for medical assistance, and may pledge the credit of the Company for the same. In all such cases, the authority will depend upon the circumstances. On a parole contract with a public board to perform certain professional services for such recompense as the board may allow as right and proper, an action will lie to recover a reasonable recompense, although the board tender what they consider right and proper. If there be a formal written contract, however, no such action will lie. The following are the fees and charges which may be claimed by medical men when called upon to give evidence in Courts of Law. Except in criminal cases, these fees, &c., are payable although the witness be not called upon to give professional evidence:—In the Superior Courts, and in Equity, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident in the town in which the cause is tried; 2*l.* 2*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day if resident at a distance from the place of trial, inclusive of all except travelling expenses. If the witness attend in more than one cause, he is entitled to a proportionate part in each cause or fee. For travelling expenses, the amount reasonably and actually paid is allowed, provided it does not exceed 1*s.* per mile one way. In the Probate Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident within five miles of the General Post Office; 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident beyond that distance (including board and lodging). The same allowance for travelling expenses as in the Superior Courts. In the Divorce Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident within five miles of the General Post Office. From 2*l.* 2*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident beyond that distance (including board and lodging). The same allowance as in the Probate Court for travelling expenses. In the House of Lords, Physicians and Surgeons 2*l.* 2*s.* a day, and 1*l.* 1*s.* a day for hotel expenses if from home. Apothecaries 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, with the same allowance for hotel expenses. Higher charges are allowed under special circumstances. Sundays do not count as time. The sum necessarily expended is allowed for travelling expenses. In the County Court, from 10*s.* to 1*l.* a day. For travelling expenses, the sum reasonably paid not more than 6*d.* a mile one way. In the Admiralty Court, from 1*l.* 1*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, including board and lodging. The same allowance as in the Superior Courts for travelling expenses. In the Bankruptcy Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident in the town in which the Court is held. From 1*l.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident at a distance from the Court (including subsistence). Travelling expenses 7*d.* a mile one way, where no railway is available, or expenses actually incurred. In the Lord Mayor's Court, 10*s.* 6*d.* to 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, and the same allowance for travelling expenses as in the Superior Courts. The expenses of witnesses in most cases of misdemeanor and in all cases of felony are now allowed. On an examination before a magistrate, a sum not exceeding 10*s.* may be allowed to a medical witness residing in the city, borough, or parish where the examination takes place, or within two miles thereof, and to such a witness residing beyond that distance a not to exceed 1*l.* 1*s.* For mileage, a sum not exceeding 3*d.* a mile each way. Medical witnesses attending Courts of Assize, General Sessions of the Peace, &c., to give professional evidence, but not otherwise, may be allowed 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, with 2*s.* for every night they are detained from home, and for mileage, a sum not exceeding 3*d.* a mile each way. Every legally qualified practitioner who has attended at a Coroner's Inquest, in obedience to a Coroner's order, is entitled to a fee of 1*l.* 1*s.* for attending to give evidence, where no post-mortem examination has been made, and to a fee of 2*l.* 2*s.* for making a post-mortem examination and attending to give evidence. No fee can, however, be claimed for the performance of a post-mortem examination instituted without the previous direction of the Coroner. These fees are to be advanced and paid by the Coroner immediately after the termination of the Inquest.

THE SALE OF POISONS.

A medical practitioner, not being a legally qualified apothecary, is prohibited from selling or keeping an open surgery for retailing, dispensing, or compounding poisons, under a penalty of 5*l.*, unless he was either registered before August 11th, 1869, or has been registered since that date, after passing an examination in pharmacy in order to obtain his diploma for such registration. A legally qualified medical practitioner may dispense to his patients medicines containing poison, but such medicine should be labelled with his name and address, and the ingredients thereof, and the name of the person to whom it is sent, should be entered in a book to be kept by him for the purpose. A medical man who keeps an open surgery must conform to the same regulations as to the sale and compounding of poisons as are imposed upon chemists and druggists, under a penalty of 5*l.* for the first, and 10*l.* for each subsequent offence. The articles which are to be deemed poisons are divided into two classes:—Part I. comprises arsenic and its preparations, prussic acid, cyanide of potassium, and all metallic cyanides, strychnine and all poisonous vegetable alkaloids and their salts, aconite and its preparations, emetic tartar, corrosive sublimate, cantharides, savin and its oil, ergot of rye and its preparations, preparations of prussic acid, preparations of cyanide of potassium, and of all metallic cyanides, preparations of strychnine, preparations of atropine, and "vermin killers," if preparations of poisons the preparations of which are included in Part I. Part II. comprises oxalic acid, chloroform, belladonna and its preparations, essential oil of almonds (unless deprived of its prussic acid), opium, and all preparations of opium or of poppies, preparations of corrosive sublimate, preparations of morphine, red oxide of mercury, ammoniated mercury, and the tincture and all vesicating liquid preparations of cantharides, chloral hydrate and its preparations, compounds containing "poisons" prepared for the destruction of vermin and not subject to the provisions of Part I. On the sale of any poison contained in Part I. or Part II., the box, vessel, or cover in which it is contained must be labelled with the name of the article, the word "poison," and the name and address of the seller. No poison included in Part I. may be sold to any person unknown to the seller, unless introduced by some person known to the seller, and upon every such sale the seller must, before delivery, enter in a book to be kept for the purpose, the date, the name and address of the purchaser, the name and quantity of poison sold, and the purpose for which it is required, and must also cause the purchaser, and the person introducing the purchaser, to sign their names therein. Further restrictions are imposed on the sale of arsenic, except where the same forms part of a medicine compounded according to the prescription of a member of the medical profession, and a penalty of 20*l.* may be inflicted upon any one not conforming to the necessary regulations. If the purchaser be not known to the seller, a witness to the sale, who must be known to both, is required, and the sale must be made in his presence. The seller must, before delivery, enter into a book, to be kept for the purpose, the date of sale, the name and surname of purchaser, his place of abode and condition and occupation, the quantity of arsenic sold, and the purpose for which it is required, and must also sign his own name after such statement, and cause the purchaser to sign his name and address. No arsenic may be sold to a person under age; nor may any arsenic be sold unless, before the sale, it be mixed with soot or indigo, in the proportion of one ounce of soot or half an ounce of indigo, at the least, to each pound of arsenic. But if the purchaser state that the arsenic is required not for use in agriculture, but for some other purpose for which such admixture would, according to his representation, render it unfit, such arsenic may be sold without such admixture, in a quantity of not less than ten pounds at any one time. The registration of chemists in Ireland is regulated by "The Pharmacy Act (Ireland), 1875" (38 & 39 Vict. c. 57).

CERTIFICATES IN LUNACY.

As a general rule, two certificates are required with every insane person who is to be placed in an asylum or licensed house, each of which must be signed by a registered physician, surgeon, or apothecary, in actual practice. Each certificate must state that the patient is a proper person to be taken charge of and detained, and the person signing the same must specify the facts upon which he has formed his opinion that the patient is a lunatic, idiot, or person of unsound mind, and must distinguish facts observed by himself from facts communicated to him by others. It must not be founded only upon facts communicated by others, nor must there be any want of certainty in stating the facts required to be specified. The two medical men who sign the certificates must not be partners, nor must one be an assistant to the other, nor may either of them be a commissioner or visitor; nor, if the patient is to be received into a licensed house or a hospital, may either certificate be signed by any one who, or whose father, brother, son, partner, or assistant is wholly or partly the proprietor of, or a regular professional attendant in such house or hospital, or has signed the order for the reception of the patient; nor may any person receiving any percentage on, or otherwise interested in, the payments to be made by or on account of the patient, or keeping a licensed house, or attending, in his medical capacity, a licensed house, asylum, hospital, or place where any lunatic may be confined, sign a certificate for the reception of a private patient into any licensed or other house; nor may any one who, or whose father, brother, son, partner, or assistant shall sign the order for the reception of a patient into an asylum, sign the certificate for the reception of the same patient. Medical men signing certificates contrary to any of these provisions are liable to heavy penalties. The following is the form of medical certificate for the reception of a private patient into a licensed house or asylum:—

"I, the undersigned [here set forth the qualification entitling the person certifying to practise as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary—e.g., 'being a fellow of the Royal College of Physicians in London'] and being in actual practice as a [physician, surgeon, or apothecary, as the case may be] hereby certify that I on the day of at [here insert the street, and number of the house (if any) or other like particulars] in the county of , separately from any other medical practitioner, personally examined A.B. of [insert residence and profession or occupation, if any], and that the said A.B. is a [lunatic, or an idiot, or a person of unsound mind] and a proper person to be taken charge of and detained under care and treatment, and that I have formed this opinion upon the following grounds, viz.:—1. Facts indicating insanity observed by myself [here state the facts]; 2. Other facts (if any) indicating insanity communicated to me by others [here state the information, and from whom]. Signed Place of abode Dated this day of , 187 ."

Where special circumstances prevent the obtaining of two such certificates before the admission of the patient, such circumstances must be set out in the order for his reception (see form of order, post), and two other valid certificates must be obtained within three days after his admission. Each medical man must, separately from the other, have personally examined the person to whom the certificate signed by him relates, not more than seven clear days previously to the reception of such person into the house or hospital. If he be not satisfied with his own personal examination, he is bound to make further inquiries before signing the certificate. The certificate need not be dated on the day of examination. Any person falsely stating or certifying anything in such certificate, and any person, not being a physician, surgeon, or apothecary, signing as such, is guilty of a misdemeanor. A medical man, moreover, signing any such certificate which is untrue, without taking due care and making due inquiries, is liable to an action by the person injured by the consequences which may ensue. He is only liable, however, where he has wilfully signed a false certificate, or where he has been guilty of gross negligence in conducting the examination. If the certificate be signed maliciously, and without reasonable or probable cause it may also be treated as a libel. The medical certificates for the admission of a private patient into a licensed house or asylum must be accompanied by an Order and Statement, in the following form:—

Order.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD.

This Board, which was established towards the latter end of 1871, consists of a president appointed by the Crown, the President of the Privy Council, all the principal Secretaries of State, the Lord Privy Seal, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Poor Law Board has ceased to exist, and all the powers and duties vested in or imposed on the Poor Law Board have been transferred to the new Board. To this Board also have been transferred all the powers and duties of the Secretary of State with reference to the Acts affecting public health, drainage, sanitary matters, the registration of births, deaths, and marriages, &c., sundry powers and duties of the Board of Trade, the powers of the General Board of Health, and also all the powers and duties of the Privy Council with reference to the Acts affecting the Prevention of Disease by Vaccination. The Board may issue directions and regulations, as they shall think proper, for the speedy interment of the dead; for house-to-house visitations; for the dispensing of medicines; for guarding against the spread of disease; and for affording to persons afflicted by or threatened with epidemic, endemic, or contagious diseases, such medical aid and such accommodation as may be required. The Inspectors of the Board may attend meetings of the sanitary authorities when directed by the Board. They have, for the purposes of any inquiry directed by the Board, in relation to witnesses and their examination, the production of papers and accounts and the inspection of places and matters for the purposes of the Sanitary Acts, similar powers to those which poor-law inspectors have under, and for the purposes of, the Acts relating to the Poor Law. Rules and orders of the Board are proved in the same manner as rules and orders of the Poor Law Board were previously proved.

IRISH LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD.

The Board, established under an Act passed in 1872, consists of a president, being the Lord-Lieutenant for the time being, a vice-president, the under-secretary to the Lord-Lieutenant for the time being, and two other commissioners, one being qualified in like manner as the medical commissioner under the Medical Charities Act. In this Board is concentrated the supervision of the laws relating to the public health, local government, and the relief of the poor in Ireland. The laws relating to Public Health are carried into effect by urban and rural sanitary authorities, as in England.

LEGISLATION OF THE PAST YEAR.

The actual legislation of the past Session affects the medical profession very slightly, but the parliamentary year has been rendered memorable by the introduction of the long-expected Bill to amend the Medical Acts, which passed the Lords and the first reading in the House of Commons, and was only reluctantly abandoned by the Government at the last moment. The Bill, as brought in, followed pretty closely the lines of the Report of the Royal Commissioners, and the amendments introduced in Committee has been to strike out the section providing for a separate column in the Medical Register for the registration of higher titles recognized by the Council, and to permit the registration of diplomas granted by any of the medical corporations. The Bill, as it now stands, is divided into eight parts. Part 1 provides that the title to registry shall be the passing the final examination mentioned in the Bill; that registered practitioners may practise any branch of the profession, and shall be exempt from serving on juries and in various offices; that unregistered practitioners cannot recover charges, shall not be recognized in Acts of Parliament, and may not hold certain appointments; that Medical Boards shall be established for England, Scotland, and Ireland, elected by the Universities and Medical Corporations for the purpose of holding and regulating the final examinations before referred to, subject to the control of the Medical Council and Privy Council; that a Medical Council of eighteen members shall be established, elected by the Privy Council, the Medical Boards, and registered practitioners, to supervise and control the Medical Boards and their examinations, to call for information from medical authorities or schools, and to keep the Medical Register. Part 2 prescribes a course of medical education which candidates for the final examination must have passed through, and gives powers to the Medical Boards to regulate such education and visit schools and examinations, subject to the control of the Medical Council and Privy Council. Part 3 deals with the registration of colonial and foreign practitioners. Part 4 permits the registration of diplomas granted by Medical Corporations; provides penalties for the misuser of medical titles by registered or unregistered practitioners, for using a non-registrable title, and for falsely taking a title giving registration or qualification; regulates the keeping and publication of the Register by the council; provides that all persons on the Register at the passing of the Act may be registered in the new Register; that there shall be separate columns for home, colonial, and foreign practitioners; that the council may erase names from the Register of those who have ceased to practise, or have been convicted of crime, or have been guilty of infamous professional conduct, or in the last case may suspend the offender; and that medical authorities shall have power to grant diplomas to either sex. Part 5 provides for raising funds to meet the expenses of the Act, and provides that any surplus shall be applied for the benefit of the medical profession. Part 6 regulates the status of the Boards and Council and the election of officers by them, and gives an ultimate controlling power to the Privy Council. Part 7 deals with the transition from old to new law, and gives free registration on the new Register to all registered practitioners up to the time of the time to be fixed in the Act. Part 8 regulates the publication of the Pharmacopœia by the Council; contains saving clauses as to chemists, hospitals for foreigners, and the Pharmacy Act; and enacts that existing registered practitioners shall, on re-registration, be entitled to practise according to the qualification or qualifications they possessed on the day appointed by the Act, but not further or otherwise. There are schedules containing the proceedings of the Medical Boards, and the Medical Council and its committees. There have been numerous deputations to the Government on the subject of the Bill, and the principal opponents seem to be the Royal College of Surgeons. The Act 46 & 47 Vict. c. 66 enacts that the Royal University of Ireland shall henceforth have power to choose one member to be a member of the General Council, as fully and subject to the same regulations and conditions as the Queen's University in Ireland until its dissolution enjoyed and exercised the same. The Act 46 & 47 Vict. c. 35 makes provision for the isolation and treatment of persons suffering from cholera and other infectious diseases in the metropolis. The Factory and Workshop Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 53) contains regulations applying to, and with respect to the inspection of, white-lead factories and bakehouses. A Medical Officer of Health has now all the powers of an inspector under the Factory Act, 1878, with respect to retail bake-houses, and the medical officer of any local authority who becomes aware that any child, young person, or woman is employed in such a bakehouse must at once give written notice thereof to the factory inspector. Bills have been introduced for the compulsory notification of infectious diseases, and for the abolition of vivisection. The latter, which was talked out, called forth a most powerful and eloquent speech from Dr. Lyon Playfair, in which he vigorously enforced the precept that man's first duty is to man, and afterwards to the lower animals. Owing to a hostile resolution being carried, the compulsory clauses of the Contagious Diseases Acts are no longer enforced, and a Bill has been introduced to repeal the Acts, and to provide for the detention in certified hospitals of women affected with venereal diseases.

The Royal College of Physicians, London, and the Royal College of Surgeons of England, have issued particulars of a scheme whereby they intend to hold a joint examination, and all candidates who pass the third, or final examination, will be entitled to the licence and diploma. There have been numerous petitions to Parliament praying for the compulsory licensing and registration of midwives. The College of Physicians in Ireland have announced that advertisements by any of its licentiates, members, or fellows, of medical works in other than medical publications, is an offence censurable by the College.

In an important case before Mr. Justice Fry, a voluntary conveyance by a maiden lady of 67 in favour of an old family medical adviser was set aside. The patient had suggested making a codicil to her will, giving the property to the medical man, but he said it would be better to give it to him by a deed in his lifetime, and when she agreed to this, instructed his solicitor to draw up such a deed. The solicitor explained the deed to the patient, but only in the presence of the medical man, and told her that it would be irrevocable, whereas a codicil to the will would be revocable, and she answered that she gave the property freely. The learned Judge held that the question was not whether she knew what she was doing, but how the intention was produced and whether all that care and providence was placed around her, as against those who advised her, which from their situation and relation to her they were bound to exert on her behalf, inasmuch as the person who stands in a fiduciary relation to another, as in the case of medical man and his patient, is bound to exert his influence, not for his own benefit, but for the benefit of the person subject to it. Here the medical man himself suggested an irrevocable deed instead of a revocable codicil; he himself set the solicitor in motion, and the solicitor never saw the patient when she was free from the control of the medical man, and therefore was not in a positio to shield her from his influence: she was not, under these circumstances, protected as she ought to have been, and the deed must be set aside.

The resident medical officer of St. John's Hospital, Twickenham, who had been appointed f life, but had received notice to leave after he had spent 400*l.* on his residence in the hospit because the committee came to the conclusion that they could not afford any longer to suppo such an officer, endeavoured to obtain an injunction restraining the committee from disturbing h in his office; but was met by the fatal objection that he had omitted to obtain the sanction of t Charity Commissioners (required by the Act 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137, s. 17) before commencing l action. By the Public Health Act it is provided, that if it appears on the certificate of a medi man that a child is labouring under an infectious disorder, and that its parents are in want proper accommodation, a magistrate may make an order for the removal of the child to a hospi In a case where such an order had been made on such a certificate, the mother obstructed the moval of the child, and was summoned for the offence. The magistrate entered into the quest of the validity of the order and certificate, and refused to convict; but the Queen's Bench Divis held that they could not go behind the order and were bound to convict on the evidence. An registered druggist has been fined 5*l.* and costs for placing the words "analytical chemist" o his door, and a penalty of 20*l.* with costs has been recovered in the Southwark County Co against a chemist who was in the habit of practising and going his rounds as an apothecary, who held an appointment as Registrar of Births and Deaths; a fine of 20*l* has been inflicted u a practitioner for falsely using the title "L.S.A." in giving certificates. An important deci was given at the end of last year by Mr. Commissioner Kerr, in the City of London Court, to effect, that a medical man cannot recover for services rendered by an unqualified assistant. learned Judge offered to grant a case for appeal, but the matter was not carried to a higher bunal. It will be observed that the decision was not on the ground that the assistant was unr tered, but that he was unqualified. That a master can recover for services by an unregist assistant, if qualified, seems clear from the decided cases, but the point as to whether an assi should be qualified seems never to have been argued in the Superior Courts. An unqua apprentice who practised at a town nine miles from his master's house, but bonâ fide on acc of his master, who was an apothecary, was held liable to a penalty under the Apothec Act. It appeared in this case that some of the patients had never even heard of the ma and the Court in giving judgment said that the only safe interpretation of the would be that which would have the effect of confining practice by unqua assistants to their masters' houses. This case was decided before the Medical Act the wording of the disenabling clause is the same in the Apothecaries' Act. In another it was held that attending patients as assistant to an apothecary was not such as practising apothecary before the Act as to entitle the assistant to registration. Since the Medical Act have been two decisions in which important obiter dicta bearing on the point are to be f The Chief Justice of the Common Pleas in giving judgment in one of these cases is reported to said: "All the patients of the firm had the fullest security they could require so long as the of the firm was properly registered. How can it matter to the patient whether the regi practitioner is assisted by a partner, who is not on the register, or, as is usually the case, unregistered assistant?" Another report, however, shows that the learned Judge had in his an unqualified as well as unregistered assistant. According to this version, the words w "How can it matter to a patient whether the attendance is given and the medicine dispen an assistant under the supervision of his master, or, &c.?" The point seems to be of the g importance, not only to medical men, but to students wishing to gain experience of a g practice. It is not improbable that the Courts might require evidence of the nature of the services rendered by the assistant, and disallow the master's claim where the assistant had been allowed to take entire charge of a case, but allow such claim where the services had been rendered under the master's direct supervision, or where they had been of such a nature as being sent to take the temperature of a patient and report to the master, and so on. In simple cases it would probably be sufficient if the diagnosis of the case had been made by the master in the first instance. The question would be one for the jury, whether the assistant had acted under a proper and reasonable supervision, having regard to all the circumstances. In the case before Mr. Commissioner Kerr the patient had never seen the master.

The Local Government Board report that at the close of 1882 there were 154 district medical officers in the metropolis, the average remuneration of each being 125*l.* 10*s.* per annum. They recommend that all orders for medical relief should be granted by guardians for a uniform period of one month. They request that every outbreak of infectious disease in a workhouse may be immediately reported to them by the medical officer, with a statement showing the provisions for isolation and treatment, and for preventing the spread of the disease. The number of medical officers of health appointed under the regulations of the Board now amounts to 1102. Hitherto it has been the practice to appoint the officers employed for single districts for short terms, usually not exceeding two or three years. The Board state that it appears to them that under certain circumstances they may now not improperly assent to a somewhat more extended term of office. In those cases in which sanitary authorities have had some experience of the officer, and the arrangements have, in the opinion of the Board, proved in all respects satisfactory, they will be prepared to entertain a proposal to reappoint the officer for a longer term, provided he be not a Poor Law District Medical Officer. Two hundred and twenty-four analysts have now been appointed in counties and boroughs, and thirty-nine in the metropolis. In England and Wales, one sample has been analyzed for every 1350 persons. Special awards, amounting together to 14,264*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*, have been made by the Board to the public vaccinators in 751 districts out of 1350 districts inspected by the Board. The system of compulsory notification of infectious disease is at present in force in thirty towns. From the reports on its working the Board have come to the conclusion that the authorities and their medical officers of health are practically unanimous in a belief as to its great utility in curbing the spread of infection.
